BIG-THREE MAPS DOOM OF GERMANY

NAZIS FORCED BACK ON ROAD TOWARD ROME

FIFTH ARMY GAINS SLOWLY AFTER GRIM FIGHT

BY WES GALLAGHER

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Dec. 6 (AP)—American troops, fighting yard by yard up slopes too steep for supply mules, have captured three more heights in the Mount Maggiore area from which they can look down upon the German stronghold of Cassino and the valley beyond leading to Rome, the allied command announced today.

U. S. fighter-bombers swept over the hard-won positions two miles west of Mignano to drop emergency rations and munitions to Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's warriors. British infantry of the Fifth army was rooting the Nazis out of strong positions on the equally rough slopes of nearby Mount Camino and repulsing enemy counter-attacks in bitter hand-to-hand fighting.

Airplanes Grounded

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army, plunging doggedly on after having cracked the German defense line near the Adriatic Sea, reached the south bank of the Moro river, 10 miles beyond the Sangro and only about 14 from the major port of Pescara.

Fanatical "last man" resistance by the Germans in the mountain keys opening the gateway to Rome made the progress of Clark's Fifth army slow and costly. Bad weather kept the allies from bringing their tremendous air superiority into play yesterday, leaving the burden on the slogging infantry.

Official reports from the front were meager, but a military commentator gave this picture:

American and British infantry still are fighting bitterly for the possession of all ridges and peaks linking Mount Maggiore and Mount Camino, although many key strongpoints have been taken.

Official announcements omitted mention of the furious battle for Orsogna which was reported raging yesterday on the Eighth army front after the Germans recaptured the town with a tank-led counter-attack.

British destroyers were disclosed to have been supporting the Eighth army's drive up the Adriatic coast with bombardments of German supply routes, bases and shipping.

While a recurrence of the soaking rain and thick clouds grounded the allies' heavy bombers and curbed aerial operations generally, Mitchell medium bombers again attacked the Yugoslav harbor of Split, causing fires and explosions.

Pock-Marks Only Clue In Bay City Robbery-Murder

Bay City, Mich., Dec. 6. (AP)—Police seeking the slayer of Floyd Ackerman, theater manager, continued their search tonight for a man with a scarred and pock-marked face, but admitted they had few if any clues to his whereabouts.

Ackerman, 46 years old, was shot Sunday night as he was about to deposit between $1,600 and $1,700, receipts of four Butterfield theaters here, in a night deposit box at the Peoples Commercial Bank. His assailant fled with the bag containing the funds as Ackerman fell with a bullet wound in his left side. He died within an hour. It was discovered this afternoon that the bullet had passed through his body and emerged under his right arm.

Big Navy Carrier Force Raids Marshall Islands

(By The Associated Press)

Possibly presaging another mid-Pacific invasion, strong American carrier forces bombed Japanese fortresses in the Marshall Islands while our submarines sank 11 more Japanese merchant ships, the Navy announced last night (Monday) on the eve of the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

In the last 10 days the Navy has reported the sinking of 20 Japanese merchant ships by submarines, an average of two a day pared from the dwindling enemy merchant fleet, urgently needed to supply island outposts.

Japanese retreated before Australian tanks along the Huon peninsula coast of New Guinea and had fallen back so far on Bougainville Island that American patrols were unable to contact them. Allied bombers blasted Cape Gloucester with 155 tons of bombs, bringing to 588 tons the weight of explosives poured within a week on the Cape and adjacent Borgen Bay at the vulnerable tip of New Britain, hinge of Japan's southern defenses.

Radio silence prevented reporting details of the carrier raid on the Marshalls, northwest of the recently conquered Gilbert Islands. The attack, following daily raids by army bombers from the 7th U. S. Airforce and naval reconnaissance planes, was apparently similar to carrier raids on the Gilberts a few days before they were invaded.

A Tokyo broadcast reporting the raid early, claimed that 20 of the 100 attacking American planes were shot down, a carrier and a heavy cruiser sunk, and two other Allied war ships damaged.

The latest report of our undersea toll on Japanese merchant shipping brought to 516 the number of enemy ships that have been sunk in the Pacific. Yesterday's announcement listed ten freighters and one large tanker as the newest prey of the submarines.

While warplanes bombed the Marshall Islands, Nauru and Kapingamarangi Atoll, Allied spokesmen forecast greater battles next year and speculated on Japan's ability to profit by her conquests since Pearl Harbor.

With the enemy "reeling from unceasing pressure," General H. H. Arnold wrote in the Army and Navy Journal, "The offensive will continue to mount until the Axis has neither the will nor the ability to resist."

SUBSIDY ACTION DELAY OPPOSED

Scheme Of Democratic Leaders In Senate Strikes Snag

Washington, Dec. 6 (AP)—A quiet move by Democratic leaders for a 60-day postponement of the senate vote on the house bill to repeal food subsidies Jan. 1 struck a snag today when war food administrator Marvin Jones declared such a delay might create confusion and hamper the 1944 food production program.

In testimony before the senate banking committee Jones said congress should decide at once whether the billion dollar-a-year subsidy program is to be continued or abolished so that price control agencies and farmers could lay their plans accordingly for next year.

President J. B. Hutson of the Commodity Credit Corporation, which pays out most of the subsidy money, seconded Jones' view and farm bloc leaders—supporting the subsidy repeal legislation—announced they would press for conclusion of the senate banking committee hearings by Thursday with a view to getting the bill to the senate floor next week.

Like other administration witnesses, Jones and Hutson condemned the provisions of the house bill that would require food prices to be raised, in lieu of subsities, as certain to result in a general food price inflation and a shattering of President Roosevelt's hold-the-line policy.

Ionia Police Hold 2-Gun Bad Man, 15

Ionia, Mich., Dec. 6 (AP)—A 15-year-old youth who thought he wanted to be a two-gun bad man was held by county authorities here tonight after he had confessed, according to Prosecuting Attorney Geer H. Smith, that he held up four men and three women in a gasoline station-lunch room near here and stole two automobiles in an adventure that lasted less than 10 hours.

The youth is Charles Keech, whose home is on a farm near Lowell in nearby Kent county. He was seized in Clarksville, Ionia county, this morning, when according to the story he told Prosecutor Smith, he went to a gasoline service station seeking a ride back to Ionia to "give up my guns."

DIRTY FARMER SLUR RESENTED

Jap Help On Promoting Daily Baths Is Not Needed, Says Kelly

Lansing, Dec. 6. (AP)—Governor Kelly today entered the discussion concerning disclosure that the Columbus, Ohio, officer of the War Relocation authority had told Japanese-Americans in relocation centers they could teach Ohio and Michigan farmers and seasonal workers the value of daily baths.

In a formal statement Kelly said:

"I am deeply resentful of any aspersions upon the Michigan farmer. This year, in the face of the worst weather conditions in memory, and of manpower and equipment shortages, he made an outstanding contribution to the war effort. He has demonstrated his faithfulness and his willingness to work far beyond the ability of the Japanese to teach these things. As to his appreciation of a job well done, he takes the view that there will be time for that when and after he has finished.

"He has troubles enough without being called upon to defend himself against slanders on his cleanliness and his ability."

Everett L. Dakan, the War Relocation authority officer in question, said at Columbus he wrote an article for distribution among the internees, but that his mention of bathing lessons was intended as a "sales talk" to the Japanese-Americans, not as an affront to the farmers.

SURPLUS METAL SUPPLIES GROW

Washing Machines And Electric Irons May Return In 1944

BY JOHN B. LEWIS

New York, Dec. 6 (AP)—If the surplus of metals left over from war supplies continues to grow, American housewives again may be able to buy electric irons and washing machines in 1944.

A survey of the metals industry shows that steel, copper and even aluminum is beginning to pile up as the result of military cutbacks, and industry leaders feel that government limitation orders will be eased on household needs as soon as the War Production Board (WPB) decides some urgent civilian wants can be supplied safely.

One company estimates that the immediate demands totals 2,000,000 electric irons, 1,000,000 washing machines and another 1,000,000 refrigerators.

Reports from some sections of the country show that the slack in steel orders caused by cutbacks in weapons of war is being taken up right now by orders for new pipe from the oil industry.

In copper, aluminum and other metals, so-called "forward orders" by manufacturers of vitally-needed civilian goods will take care of any surpluses for months to come.

Some sources predict that steel surpluses of 10 per cent may be available for civilian use early next year and that the easing up on certain types of war supplies will permit a manpower turnover without loss of time or jobs.

Destroyer Convoy Evades Jap Attack, Downs Six Bombers

BY SPENCER DAVIS

Aboard a destroyer off Bougainville in the Solomons, Dec. 2 (AP) (Delayed)—Between 20 and 25 Japanese planes vainly attempted tonight to bomb and torpedo a squadron of destroyers out of existence but lost at least six, and possibly more, planes during nearly an hour's action with only minor damage to one ship to show for it.

The destroyers were providing the outer screen for a convoy moving supplies and reinforcements to the American beachhead on the west-central coast of Bougainville at Empress Augusta Bay.

While the destroyers were weathering the bombing attack, another group of enemy planes tried without success to hit the convoy. All the ships arrived intact at their destination, and losses were confined to two barrage balloons.

RAILWAY LINE CUT TO DIVIDE HUGE ENEMY FORCE

BY JUDSON O'QUINN

London, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Red army captured 22 hamlets in a powerful new smash inside the Dnieper River bend today, cutting the Smela-Znamenka railway to divide huge German forces protecting those terminals leading to the Rumanian frontier.

Slashing forward through snowdrifts whipped by a howling blizzard, Gen. Rodion Malinovsky's troops were declared by Moscow to have seized points on both sides of Znamenka, which is 50 miles southeast of the other vital junction of Smela, now menaced by other Russian units attacking in the Cherkasy sector.

Reds Near Crossroads

The Russians last were reported only six miles from Znamenka, a crossroads for the Nazi rail supply system in the middle Ukraine, and about the same distance from Smela in an attack which had bypassed Cherkasy.

The southwestward push of General Malinovsky's troops clearly was intended to relieve pressure on other Soviet units fighting in the Cherkasy sector, where Berlin told of terrific Russian attacks. It also was a flanking move on Krivoi rog, Manganese center to the southeast, where German troops have been holding firmly against weeks of Soviet assault.

Collapse of this central Ukraine salient would send the Germans reeling pack along the network of railways leading to Rumania, 170 miles away, and also imperil huge enemy forces near the mouth of the Dnieper River and in the Zhitomir-Korosten sector west of Kiev on the road to Poland.

Tank Battle Rages

Germany's high command communique said the fighting generally was located northeast and northwest of Krivoi Rog, and Berlin said one heavy tank battle still was going on.

Berlin radio broadcasts admitted deep Russian penetrations under cover of a raging snowstorm which limited visibility.

The Smela-Znamenka railway is a link in the Dnepropetrovsk-Fastov line located some distance beyond the Dnieper River's west bank. Russian troops long ago cut the trunk line at Dnepropetrovsk and for a considerable distance to the west, but the Germans have been using its intact parts to service their beleaguered troops between the river and the Black Sea and Rumania.

The new push between Smela and Znamenka was the most significant development disclosed in

SOLON WANTED BY GRAND JURY

Stockfish Of Hamtramck Missing, Hunted For Bribe Questioning

Lansing, Dec. 6 (AP)—In Michigan, and across the border in Canada, police officials sought today to locate State Rep. Walter N. Stockfish, Hamtramck Democrat, to subpoena him as a witness before a grand jury investigating the legislature.

Stae police and municipal police teletypes in the Detroit area carried the pickup order for Stockfish, who has been missing from his home since Friday, without giving indication when he would return.

Grand jury officials said Stockfish was aware that Judge Carr wanted to question him at an early date.

Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr, conducting the one-man grand jury inquiry into tales of corrupt conniving in the legislature, said the desire to question Stockfish grew from a statement by State Rep. Stanley J. Dombrowski, Detroit Democrat, who now is in the prison of southern Michigan under sentence of 3½ to 15 years for perjury.

Dombrowski confessed in court when he was sentenced that he gave false testimony to the grand jury.

Auditor General Vernon J. Brown disclosed today Dombrowski would continue to draw his legislative wage of $3 a day while in prison. He said the legislator's name would be stricken from the payroll only if Speaker Howard Nugent of the House of Representatives succeeded in his announced intention to have Dombrowski ousted from his legislative seat.

Third Conference May Bring Turkey To Side Of Allies

BY JAMES M. LONG

London, Dec. 6 (AP)—The third of a series of great international conferences now is in progress, it was disclosed tonight, and the meeting is believed to be closely related to Turkey's future in relation to the Allies' war against Germany.

According to foreign accounts of this newest meeting, its principals are President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and President Ismet Inonu of Turkey—with North Africa as the scene of the sessions. The conference possibly is comparable in significance to those which the major Allied leaders already have held in Cairo and Teheran.

Churchill, say these reports, is accompanied by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, whose discussions with the Turkish foreign minister during the week ending November 6 at Cairo, it is assumed, had an important bearing on the present meeting.

Roosevelt was reported accompanied by Harry Hopkins, his personal adviser, and Inonu by Numan Menemencioglu, Turkish foreign minister.

The presence of Inonu at a conference with Roosevelt and Churchill suggested plainly that the newest of the great series of strategic political moves by the Allied leaders undoubtedly was based on the British-Turkish pact of 1939—never up to now fully implemented—pledging Turkey to aid Britain in event of aggression leading to war in the Mediterranean.

The trend of much of the recent news from Ankara increasingly has reflected an apparent growing determination by Turkey to get into the war in at least some capacity—and certainly on the side of the Allies, if at all.

Russia, whose relations with Turkey lately have been improving, is understood to have stressed the importance of Turkish intervention.

YOUTH IN TWIN KILLING CAUGHT

Grand Rapids Escapee Being Brought Back From Memphis

Memphis, Dec. 6 (AP)—John Frederick Wilbert, 20-year-old fugitive from a Michigan state hospital who is charged with the slaying of his father and grandmother, will be released to Michigan state authorities tomorrow night, U. S. District Attorney William McClanahan said tonight.

McClanahan asserted he had received authority from U. S. District Attorney Howard Coughran of Indianapolis to cancel extradition of Wilbert to Indianapolis to face a federal charge of forging a money order.

McClanahan said the postal charge against Wilbert had not been dismissed but was being subordinated to the more serious state charges.

The gangling, red-haired Wilbert waived preliminary hearing and pleaded innocent to charges of forging a $5 money order when he appeared before U. S. Commissioner L. R. Featherstone today.

Featherstone quoted the youth as saying, "under the circumstances, I am not guilty of the postal charge." He said the boy was sullen and refused to comment on the murder charges.

Memphis police arrested Wilbert as he stepped from a bus Saturday night. The arrest followed a radio call from Grand Rapids, Mich., authorities, who said the youth was wanted in connection with the slaying of his father, Fred C. Wilbert, 52, and his grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Wilbert, 77. They were found dead in their home in Grand Rapids Friday, shot with a small calibre gun.

Quarrel Over Girl Leads To Killing Of Rival Suitor, 22

Detroit, Dec. 6. (AP)—A quarrel over the affections of an 18-year-old girl led to the killing in a parked automobile early this morning of a 22-year-old suitor and the detention of a second who, detectives said, admitted the slaying.

The dead youth was Thaddeus L. Piwowar. Shortly after Joseph Syjut, 20, surrendered at a West Side precinct station. Inspector John O. Whitman, of the homicide squad, said he confessed shooting Piwowar at 3:25 a. m. "because he had been running around with my girl."

The girl, Eugenia Zakrzewski, 19, was seated in the car with Piwowar when the shooting occurred. She told detectives that Syjut and another youth wearing a soldier's uniform appeared suddenly and demanded that Piwowar get out of the car. When he refused, she said, Syjut thrust a pistol through the car window and fired once. Piwowar was struck under the heart and died an hour later in Receiving hospital.

Blast Of Gasoline Truck Kills Baby

Fort Myers, Fla., Dec. 6 (AP)—A 14 months old baby died tonight as a result of burns suffered when a loaded gasoline truck exploded here yesterday, injuring 75 people.

The baby, Darrell Conrad Williams, was in the arms of his aunt, Mrs. Stella Williams, when the gasoline truck exploded five minutes after it had collided with another truck, and sprayed a crowd of people with burning gasoline.

Lee Memorial hospital reported two others tonight were in a critical condition. They were Austin Miller of Tampa, driver of the gasoline truck, and Mrs. Belgie Harris of Sarasota.

Seven others of the 75 treated for varying degrees of burns were still being detained at the hospital.

ALLIES MASS STRENGTH TO CRUSH HITLER

LEADERS AGREED ON PACT TO BANISH WAR SCOURGE

BY JOHN F. CHESTER AND WILLIAM McGAFFIN

Cairo, Dec. 6 (AP)—Leaders of the greatest Allied powers — the United States, Russia and Britain—in historic conference in ancient Persia reached full agreement to crush Germany by concerted blows from the east, west and south, it was disclosed today, and laid plans for a world family of democratic nations to "banish the scourge and terror of war for many generations."

This most significant of all wartime meetings, bringing President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin together for the first time, was held in Teheran, capital of storied Iran (Persia) for four days, from Nov. 28 to Dec. 1.

Unity Undisputed

The conference, further tipping the scales of defeat against Germany by incontestable unity of three chiefs of state said to have met "in extreme cordiality," came as the Allies massed strength in the west and in the Mediterranean, with Russia already pressing in from the East.

Further indicating that the blows from west and south may not long be delayed, the topmost military chieftains of America and Britain pooled their genius again in meetings from Friday through today in Cairo after returning from Teheran. Churchill joined them. The whereabouts of President Roosevelt since he left Teheran Dec. 2 were not disclosed.

Enduring Peace Pledged

"The "big three" and their military staffs at Teheran "concerted our plans for the destruction of the German forces," declared the joint communique released here and signed simply by "Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill."

As to the peace, "we are sure that our concord will make it an enduring peace," and "we shall seek the cooperation and active participation of all nations, large and small, whose peoples in heart and mind are dedicated, as are our own peoples, to the elimination of tyranny and slavery, oppression and intolerance. We will welcome them as they may choose to come into a world family of democratic nations."

Sword Presented Stalin

In another declaration, the conferees pledged wartime and post-war aid to Iran, and invited the assistance of Iran and other peace-loving nations in establishing and maintaining peace "in accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter."

The scene at Teheran—where the Nazis had unsuccessfully dropped agents by parachute—was marked by thousands of Allied troops, armor and guns, by Stalin honoring his Allied friends in smiling, glass-clinking toasts, by a party on the occasion of the 69th birthday of the ebullient Churchill, and by presentation of a handsome British-made "Stalin-

CIANO KILLED BY FASCISTS?

Mussolini's Son-In-Law Reported Executed As Traitor

BY FRANK BRUTTO

Bern, Dec. 6 (AP)—An unconfirmed report from the Swiss-Italian frontier tonight said that Count Galeazzo Ciano, former fascist foreign minister of Italy, had been executed by a firing squad today as a traitor to the old regime of Benito Mussolini, his father-in-law.

(The German news agency DNB boardcast a denial, quoting "competent Italian quarters" in Nazi-occupied Milan. DNB said "the trial against Count Ciano has not begun yet.")

The frontier report, transmitted by the Swiss telegraph agency, said both Mussolini and his daughter Edda, the wife of the Count, refrained from intervening in Ciano's behalf.

The suave, smug 40-year old diplomat who signed the Italian-German military pact in 1939 and once dreamed of heading an Italian dynasty to succeed the Royal House of Savoy was said to have been shot in the back—the traditional coward's death—after being convicted of high treason by a special tribunal of Mussolini's new "republican fascist" government, a German puppet organization.

The Swiss telegraphic agency said the trial was supposed to have been held in a locality in Northern Italy. Ciano was declared to have conducted himself bravely at the trial and the execution.

Convict 25 Years Asks New Hearing

Pontiac, Mich., Dec. 6. (AP)—Allen Livingstone, 55, convicted 25 years ago of the rape-slaying of Hope Alexander, 13, filed a motion in Oakland circuit court today for a new trial.

Livingstone, who throughout his quarter century in prison has denied the crime, contends he was convicted on circumstantial evidence. He is acting as his own attorney.

The attack on the Alexander child occurred on July 4, 1917, in a wooded section at Woodward avenue and Nine and One-Half Mile Road. Livingstone, a restaurant dishwasher, was identified by a 10-year-old companion of the victim. The playmate was shot through the neck and tied to a tree.

No date has been set for a hearing on Livingstone's motion.

REGISTER SOON FOR RUM CARD

Youths Age 21 To 25 Require Identity Cards Jan. 1

The registration of Delta county youths 21 to 25, inclusive, who will be isued identification cards permitting them to legally purchase and consume liquor, will be started in a few days at the office of County Clerk Theodore Ohlen in the courthouse.

The county clerk will register the men and women in this age group at request of the state, and on application of the youths. The new state law forbids the purchase or consumption of liquor by persons in this age group unless they have the identification card in their possession. The new law becomes effective January 1.

They must carry and display on demand the liquor purchasing identification card which they obtain from the county clerk's office. A 50 cent fee is charged for issuing the cards, and this fee goes to the county general fund.

Applicants first fill out an application card. Their age and other information is required. The clerk has the right to demand the applicant present a birth certificate in certifying his age.

The identification card which is issued carries the name, age and address of the person to whom it is issued, and also a photograph size 1¼ by 1½ inches. Applicants who bring their photograph with them to the clerk's office and provide all of the necessary information, will receive their identification card immediately.

The photograph is required and no card will be issued without it.

A supply of the cards will be received at the county clerk's office in a few days, and an announcement of their arrival will be made.

Winter Offensive Predicted

Northwest of Gomel where the Russians were within eight miles of Zhlobin, the White Russia rail junction on the Leningrad-Odessa and Gomel-Minsk lines, the Red army conquered several additional localities, but these were not named.

At the western end of the bulge beyond Kiev the Russians said their troops beat down heavy German attacks in the Chernyakhov sector.

A German military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, suggested in a Berlin broadcast that the Russians were speeding preparations for an even heavier winter onslaught, moving up a whole newly-equipped winter army to take over attacks which have been raging sporadically all the way from the Nevel sector, on the approaches to the Latvian frontier, to the Crimea, where Berlin said the Russians again were attacking.

No Extra Gasoline For Yule Deliveries

Washington, Dec. 6. (AP)—Merchants will get no additional gasoline for Christmas deliveries, the Office of Defense transportation announced tonight.

Special permits to increase the number of truck deliveries in the pre-Christmas season may be issued by ODT district office managers, the agency said, but only if a "clear showing" is made that more deliveries are necessary to maintain adequate and essential distribution service.

grad sword" to Stalin.

These and other details were described in dispatches by Lloyd Stratton, president of the Associated Press, limited, British subsidiary of the Associated Press. Stratton and Edward Angly of the Chicago Sun were the only two American correspondents who reached Teheran.

American Factories Praised

Stalin in a toast at one dinner declared that "without American production, the United Nations could never have won the war."

The first plenary session came Sunday, after the initial meeting of Stalin and Roosevelt, who were joined an hour later by Churchill.

With Stalin came but two high advisers, Foreign Secretary Vyacheslav Molotov and Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, while Roosevelt and Churchill were accompanied by large staffs of star military and diplomatic leaders.

Armored cars and tanks nosed about the city of Mongolian and modern architecture, guards with tommy-guns at the ready patrolled the streets, U. S. military police guarded main streets and squares, and overhead a canopy of fighter planes and bombers flew constant vigil. For five hours on Monday, Teheran's business came virtually to a halt during the meeting at the Russian embassy, with traffic stopped, and pedestrians herded into doorways, alleys, and shops.

For Stalin, it was his first trip outside Russia's boundaries since 1917.

Second Front Settled

The final session of the epochal conference was held Wednesday at the Soviet embassy.

At that time the conferees apparently knocked down their major differences—obviously dozens of minor differences were not settled if even discussed — and emerged with the outline for an "enduring peace."

On Thursday, Dec. 2, President Roosevelt visited American troops before he and Churchill left by plane.

There was no mention made, apparently, of a "second front," and it appeared that that question had been fully settled. Also, no mention was made in the communique of "unconditional surrender" of Germany, nor was an expected "surrender or die" ultimatum given Germany.

The three declared their meeting in the capital of their ally Iran had "shaped and confirmed our common policy."

Looking to the future, the national chieftains said "we recognize fully the supreme responsibility resting upon us and all the United Nations to make a peace which will command the good will of the overwhelming masses of the peoples of the world and banish the source and terror of war for many generations."

BY WILLIAM F. FRYE

Washington, Dec. 6 (AP)—The agreement of the Allied "big three" at Teheran on a master plan to defeat Germany may mean that Anglo-American strategists will accept the hazards of bad weather in order to strike hard on new fronts while the Red's army winter offensive is at its peak.

The official announcement today of the conference of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin of course gave no hint of time or place—but it promised assaults from the south, west and east and gave assurance that "our attacks will be relentless and unceasing."

This announcement of the Teheran agreement focused attention on the possibility that the final three way assault on the continent is imminent.

Turkey Coming In?

This speculation took note of the sudden increase in Allied pressure against the Germans in Italy during the last week, the growing indications that Turkey may join the Allies and thus open a direct route into the Balkans, the repeated suggestions that General George C. Marshall might not return to the United States from Teheran but go to London to assume command of the invasion forces.

If winter invasions have been agreed upon, it means that the Anglo-American high command has concluded that winter weather in western and southern Europe, while presenting serious obstacles, offers no disadvantages that are not heavily outweighed by the desirability of launching one or more major attacks on Europe while the bulk of Hitler's ground forces are pinned down in Russia.

Winter would give the invading armies the advantage of long nights to cover their landings, and the element of surprise involved in hitting the enemy at the time generally considered the least desirable.

Winter provides serious obstacles, however. The storms and heavy overcasts might interfere seriously with Allied air operations at a time when complete air superiority would be essential. Storms would make landings more difficult. In western Europe, rain and mud and cold would hamper movements ashore after a beachhead was established, and in the Balkans, the mountain passes are likely to be filled with snow.

Shrinkage Grows In Lumber Stocks

Washington, Dec. 6 (AP)—Gross lumber stocks held by sawmills declined to 2,631,008,000 board feet during the third quarter of 1932, the War Production Board announced today.

The shrinkage was approximately 1,320,000,000 feet since January 1, with the sharpest reductions in the east.

The decline between the second and third quarters of 1943 showed lake states at 27.7 per cent.

Farmers, Business Men Enjoy Dinner Program

Joining in one of the most enjoyable meetings of its kind in years, the Escanaba Potato Boosters Association sponsors and Escanaba Rotary Club, and Delta county farmers last night were guests of 10 potato grower winners of the Booster Association's four-year program at a dinner meeting last night in Cornell township hall.

About 175 men attended the meeting from the city and county. The venison steak dinner was prepared and served by the women's committee of the Cornell PTA unit.

Clayton Ford was chairman of the meeting, and August Lundgaard, Cornell merchant, was toastmaster. John P. Norton of Escanaba, and Old Orchard Farm owner, spoke for the farmers at the meeting.

Other speakers were D. L. Clanahan, Marquette, U. P. extension crops specialist; and Karl Knaus, field agent for the Central States Extension Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Norton pointed out that although Escanaba business men may sponsor the Potato Boosters program, it is the farmer who grows the prize winning potatoes. The Delta county farmer likes the Escanaba market but does not have to depend on it, for most of them have production ample to make carload shipments. The four-year history of the Booster Association program was outlined, and Norton declared it should be continued for the benefit of the smaller growers who now need such assistance the most.

Clanahan, speaking on the possibilities of potato production in the Escanaba area, presented figures showing it is possible to increase the potato production area in the county from 6,700 as it is at present to a maximum of 11,000 acres, or 25 per cent of all crop lands in the county.

This should be done, he added, only if four-year crop rotation is practiced, more certified seed is used, and production is increased into the 200 to 300 per acre class. Soil and climate here is right for spud production and there is ample market area which could easily provide a market for this increased production of quality potatoes.

Potatoes are not fattening, are at the top in the number of food units which can be produced from one acre of ground—higher than soy beans. About 20 per cent of the population of the nation is in Michigar and the surrounding four states, and this area produces only about 10 per cent of the nation's potatoes, he pointed out. Combining all these factors, Clanahan predicted unusually fine possibilities in potato production in this area.

Knaus asid that right now our first concern is the nation's wartime food situation. The country has struggled with surpluses for years, now the picture has been reversed.

Butter reserves in this country are not excessive, he said, and there is need for more dairy products. The demand now is for whole milk, because the need for solids is just as great as that for butterfat.

"We must control waste on the farm as well as in the nation's garbage cans," Knaus said.

Small potatoes should be saved, the unproductive dairy cow must be weeded out of the herd, perishables must be better handled, cream must be clean and unspoiled. In some cases careless handling of farm products shows losses running as high as 37 per cent, he pointed out.

Grain will be scarcer this coming year, he predicted. In summarizing he said the price outlook for dairy products is more favorable this coming year, while hog production will be down.

The meeting generally was informal and one of the most entertaining get-togethers in the county's history. Largely this was the result of Toastmaster Lundgaard's expertly easy handling of the meeting. There was lively discussion, humorous stories and general goodfellowship.

Mrs. Alfred Dahl, president of the Cornell PTA unit, headed a committee arranging the preparation and serving of the dinner. On the committee were Mrs. Ted McFadden, Mrs. Harold Woodward and Mrs. Grey Knaus.

Assisting in preparing and serving the dinner were Mesdames Eugene Miron, Yjakmer Olson, Fred Bennet, Harold Woodard, Martin Shire, Hoard Shire, August Lundgaard, Grey Knaus, Ted McFadden, Frank Faulkies, Ralph Rose, Eugene Gamache, Charles Miller, John Backlund, Clayton Ford, Alfred Dahl and Miss Mary Lundgaard.

Hosts were the 10 Potato Boosters association four year program winners:

Emil DeBacker, Grey Knaus, Clayton Ford, Octave Carrigan, Frank Barron, George Larson, Ed Fenlon, William Van Enkevort, Adolph Goncheski and Fulgenz Falkies.

Three Deny They Broke Deer Law

Three Escanaba men, Dr. C. J. Corcoran, Gordon Corcoran and Abe Houle, yesterday pleaded not guilty to a charge of violating a conservation deer law and were released on their own recognizance for trial later in Justice Werner Olson's court. Trial date will be set following a conference today with Prosecuting Attorney Torval Strom.

The three are charged with possession and transportation of venison from the carcass of a deer the sex identity of which has been obliterated. They were arrested on November 28 at Cornell.

Three Are Injured In Auto Accident

Three persons suffered cuts and bruises and a fourth was less seriously hurt when a car driven by Mrs. James Vanderlin of 1207 South 2nd avenue, struck a stalled car on M-35 one-half mile south of Escanaba at about 1 a. m. Sunday.

Injured were Mrs. Vanderlin, Mrs. Caroline Beck, of the same address, and Miss Elsie Lund of Escanaba Route 1, occupants of the Vanderlin car. They are receiving treatment in St. Francis hospital.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Lewis Brown of Washington avenue, stalled on the highway. Brown and a companion, William Hansley of 1408 South 2nd avenue, were working to get the car off the highway when the accident happened, sheriff's officers reported. Brown suffered a bumped head and a cut hand.

The question: "Do you think the public should reduce the number of Christmas cards they mail this year because of the manpower shortage at the postoffices and the increased volume of holiday mail to servicemen?"

Joseph Pillote, 929 Stephenson avenue: "A Christmas cards expresses a lot of sentiment at the holiday season and let's your friend know that you are thinking of him. No, I don't think that Christmas cards should be eliminated or reduced. It would be better to reduce gift mailings, if necessary."

Joseph Pillote H. J. Thompson

Henry J. Thompson, Gladstone: "I plan to send out all the Christmas cards that I can, just as I always have. I hope that other people also do that. A card at Christmas expresses a lot of good cheer. They will be delivered if people mail them early enough."

Rose Groleau, 339 No. 16th street: "There are fewer gifts available in the stores this year and in some cases Christmas cards will have to replace the usual Christmas gifts. I realize that we're at war and all that but people can't chuck everything aboard."

Rose Groleau Laura Groleau

Laura Groleau, 339 No. 16th street: "Yes, I think that the public should recognize that in times like this some of the time honored customs may have to be sacrificed. There is a critical labor shortage and it is likely that the volume of mailing will be so heavy that much cannot be delivered before Christmas. A reduction in the Christmas cards is a little enough sacrifice."

Ratings In Navy Open For Men In Ship Repair Unit

Chief Electrician's Mate H. B. Doren, Milwaukee, Wis. will be in Escanaba from 9:00 a. m. until 5:00 p. m. today to assign Petty Officer ratings in the Navy's Ship Repair Units.

Applicants with trades must bring three letters of work reference when they visit the Navy Recruiting Station, Post Office Bldg. for an interview. If employed in essential industry, they must have a letter from their employer stating that they will be released if accepted by the Navy.

Men skilled in the following metals trades are in especial demand at this time: anglesmiths, blacksmiths, boatbuilders, boilermakers, caulkers, cement workers, coppersmiths, crane operators, cupola tenders, diesel engine mechanics, divers, drillers, electricians, engine operators, forgers, instrument makers, machinists, shipwrights, sheet metal workers, steel workers, shipfitters, and telephone and switchboard men.

Ratings up to Chief Petty Officer will be assigned by Chief Doren. Years of experience and the skill of the applicant determine the ratings.

The Navy's Ship Repair Units serve on every fighting front. Some serve at sea on repair ships or on destroyer or submarine tenders, from which repairs are made. Others are stationed on shore . . . at advance bases which are actually temporary navy yards.

Chief Doren will be interviewing men who can repair and rebuild engines, install secret protective equipment, repair gun mounts, clear harbors of wrecked enemy ships and put captured enemy vessels back into action . . . in the service of Uncle Sam.

Not All B And C Gasoline Coupons Good For 5 Gals.

Supplementary gasoline coupons B-1 and C-1 still are valid only for two gallons of gasoline although the new coupons, B-2 and C-2 may be redeemed for five gallons of gasoline each, the local war price and ration board declared yesterday.

Several filling stations have been accepting all types of B and C gasoline coupons at the five gallon rate, the board was informed. Such dealers will be short when they pass the coupons on to their wholesalers because they can only be redeemed at the two gallon rate.

The B-1 and C-1 coupons were issued prior to Dec. 1 when the new type coupons became valid.

We Must Believe

LOSSES sustained by our fighting forces at Tarawa are pretty hard to take and our "arm-chair," strategists seem to be making the most of a bad situation, but the great bulk of Americas people are doing their best to accept this tragedy as an unavoidable incident to the eventual winning of the war.

A death toll of more than a thousand Marines and more than two thousand injured, in the taking of a fly speck atoll in the south Pacific, is not a matter that can be shrugged off lightly, but as a patriotic people, believing in the righteousness of our cause, we must also believe that the experience gained at ill-fated Tarawa may result in the saving of thousands of other lives in the future months of war. It maybe that those hundreds of brave boys who gave their lives on the coral beaches of that atoll made the supreme sacrifice, that other comrades might live in future similar engagements. Never again will anything be taken for granted in attacking a Japanese beachhead, no matter how insignificant may be its size or importance.

All authorities agree that Tarawa was subjected to a bombardment, previous to the landing of our Marines, that should have destroyed every semblance of life on the island. But those in charge of the operation had no means of knowing the almost impregnable positions that had been perfected by the Japs to guard that beach. Not until our forces attempted a landing and met a withering fire from enemy guns was it discovered that heavily concreted gun emplacements had not been seriously damaged by the preliminary bombardment. The result was the heaviest casualty toll suffered by our armed forces in this war.

We must believe it won't happen again.

Production Mounts

ENCOURAGING news comes from the war production front that new records have been achieved in the output of airplanes and surface ships, all of which augurs more misfortune for our Axis enemies.

During November, 8,789 planes were produced in American factories, and before the year is ended the total will have passed 85,800. But that is not all, for the prediction for next year's production is 115,000.

Correspondingly, our shipyards have exceeded the 1942-43 new ship construction goal of 24,000,000 deadweight tons by nearly 1,300,000 tons, according to an announcement by Rear Admiral Vickery, vice chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission. At the same time, Secretary Knox of the Navy revealed that November was the best month thus far, with 250,000 displacement tons of naval craft, including a dozen aircraft carriers, completed during the month.

Victory in modern warfare depends to no small degree upon the production of airplanes, ships, tanks and other implements of war. The Allies were not prepared for war when Hitler launched his offensives against France and England. It was the courageous stand put up by the British people during the terrific air blitz that gave precious time for their industries and ours to gear themselves for the manufacture of munitions and armament.

Now, production far outstrips the Axis, and our armed forces are being marshaled for decisive action in Europe early next year. What has been accomplished in a relatively short time under the stress of war is an outstanding record and a notable tribute to the ingenuity, efficiency and patriotism of American industry.

Goes Over the Top

DESPITE early doubts that the unusually large quota assigned to Delta county could be reached, the United War Fund went over the top in fine style, exceeding the goal by about $1,000.

In addition to the $22,825 raised for the United War Fund, which included the USO and a score of other wartime relief organizations, almost $9,000 was collected for the Salvation Army, Boy Scouts, Cod Liver Oil Fund and Campfire Girls.

It was Delta county's first experiencet with a drive, patterned after the Community Chest idea, and the people demonstrated that they liked it. The success achieved with this wartime effort should point the way toward the continuance of the one big drive plan for raising community funds in the future, even after peace returns to this land.

Family Discord Blamed

ALL the talk about juvenile delinquency since the outbreak of war has given the impression that something must be done about the children, but results of a recent survey indicate that what we are having in America today is a wave of parental delinquency.

Family discord is the major cause of delinquency, according to probate judges, prosecuting attorneys, superintendents of schools, sheriffs and other local officials in Michigan. This information was obtained from replies to letters sent to 2,000 local officials of Michigan by Governor Kelly recently.

Among other causes listed in the analysis were employment of mothers outside the home, leaving children unsupervised lack of religious training in the home, increased earning power tempting parents to seek personal pleasures away from home, mostly in the taverns; frequent indulgence in alcohol and gambling; general lowering of standards of conduct; and separation of fathers from the family group for fr military service or employment in distant war plants with ensuing emotional strain and increased financial responsibility on the mother.

While laws are set up for disposing of cases of juvenile delinquency, public officials report they lack effective means of controlling the parents. Among the suggestions for correcting adverse social conditions were the expansion of recreational and character-building prgrams, more religious activities and the use of child guidance clinics. Already many communities of Michigan have become aroused by the facts revealed in the survey and are taking steps to combat juvenile delinquency. The results are demonstrating that social planning has definite value.

HOW THEY ASK FOR MORE
(Milwaukee Journal)

All the leading pressure groups in congress against wage and price control — labor, farm bloc, oil, meat, citrus, milk— have fattened on the war, but each feels a sense of grievance, as one commentator has put it, "because his neighbor at the trough seems to be getting more swill."

A FISH STORY
(Wall Street Journal)

We learn from The Wall Street Journal of yesterday that fishermen on the upper Great Lakes have had a successful season, marred only by the fact that smelts disappeared quite mysteriously.

If the herring had disappeared the thing would be explainable. It would have been due to the practice generally prevalent in Washington and other places of dragging a herring across a trail. A good many herring must be worn out in such activities.

What became of the smelt is anybody's guess.

TARDY CONCERT-GOERS
(Grand Rapids Press)

One thing the war hasn't changed is the habits of some local concert-goers. As always, every concert held at Civic auditorium so far this season has been marred by the delayed entrance of a minority. At Friday evening's concert of the Don Cossack chorus that minority represented about 500 persons. Though the situation at previous concerts was somewhat less disturbing, it nevertheless was highly distracting.

The auditorium management has always been extremely co-operative in trying to prevent last minute rushes. It customarily opens the auditorium's doors at least an hour before the concert is scheduled to begin. Ordinarily it warns those who loiter in the lobby before the approach of curtain time.

Late-comers not only impose unnecessary difficulties on the performers and artists, but detract from the pleasure of those who have arrived on time and are in their seats well before the program begins. Shuffling feet and banging seats are hardly musical sounds calculated to enhance the beauty of a Mozart symphony or a solemn chorus. Occasionally a late arrival is not to be avoided—but only occasionally. Os a matter of courtesy to the rest of the audience and respect to the artists every concert-goer should be in his seat five minutes before curtain time.

DICTATORS AID CORRUPTION
(Milwaukee Journal)

One of the weaknesses of democracies, according to statements of the Nazis and Fascists as they rose to power in Germany and Italy, was political and economic corruption. The totalitarians made much of this.

It was a potent argument to many persons who were sick of the abuses they saw at times under the "freedom" of a democratic state. The authoritarians would, these persons thought, at least stop corruption. They would create a tough but honest state.

What happened?

In Germany, Hitler and Goering and other party bigwigs got rich. They seized huge industries for themselves and the Nazi small fry proved to be susceptible to bribes.

In Italy, the same sort of thing went on. As the Allies now advance in that country, they discover a degree of hypocrisy that even the strongest critics of fascism did not believe existed.

Count Ciano, for instance, became the richest man in Italy. This son-in-law of Mussolini, the records now reveal, had his share of stock in every major Italian industry. It was evidently considered useful to give him stock and put him on the board of directors.

So nazism and fascism encouraged rather than removed corruption from public and business life. They merely made it impossible to protest against the corruption and do anything to rectify it.

Under a democracy it is possible to show up corruption and to stop it. Under dictatorship there is no right of protest.

The World Today

BY COL. FREDERICK PALMER
North American Newspaper Alliance

Washington—President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, in their conference with Premier Stalin, ought to be able to convince him how simple, vital and practicable it is for him, in the common interest of shortening the war, to grant Anglo-American air bases in Russia from which to bomb Germany.

There is also the touchy subject of Anglo-American air bases in East Siberia from which to bomb Japan. Even such accomplished master pleaders as the President and Prime Minister will not accomplish the miracle of any definite promise of these bases.

Shorter range in blasting the Rumanian oil fields is only one item, alone worth it, in the advantage of Anglo-Amerilan air bases back of the Russian front in Europe.

We shall then have all Germany except her northern sea border, surrounded by Anglo-American air bases. Her every war plant and railroad center will be in their range.

* * *

German fighter plane defense will be the more scattered. More regional calls for more ground air defense will besiege battered Berlin which will be in for raids from Russian as well as British bases. Germany will be bombed from all directions.

No part of Germany will know from what direction the next raid is coming, and will be struck from two or three directions at the same time. To what extent this can be done depends upon the amount of Anglo-American air power available.

Should Stalin grant air bases from which to bomb Germany, it is unlikely we shall know that he did until the first blow from them is struck, and in a big raid at that, in the hope of catching the Germans by surprise.

On the question of air bases from which to bomb Japan we can expect only a repetition by Stalin of the Russian answer which has already been given.

That is that to grant these bases now would be short-sighted, impracticable and inimical to the common interest along with the specific Russian interest.

* * *

Once that Japan knew, and she would know, that we were starting to prepare bases with extensive necessary installations in Siberia for large-scale, all-out bombing of Japan she would do a Pearl Harbor on her non-aggression pact with Russia.

She would make the most of her strategic flanking position by striking to cut off East Siberia with the big army she still maintains in Manchukuo and a concentration of air power at her bases there.

Such is her strength on the spot that she would have a good prospect of success in capturing Vladivostok and a big depth of Russian territory beyond Vladivostok.

Then, instead of possible air bases for us in Siberia within 600 or 700 miles of Tokyo, there would be no ground not in Japanese possession nearer Tokyo than 500 miles.

* * *

This is not the whole story. It is no secret that since Russia is at peace with Japan there is no interference by Japan with Russian or neutral ships carrying a vast percentage of lend-lease shipments sent to Russia across the North Pacific, or with the flight of American-made planes to reinforce Russian air power.

If war broke out between Russia and Japan there would be an end to the above shipments until we had blasted the sea route clear to East Siberia ports and occupied them. Until then all the lend-lease would have to go by way of the Mediterranean as would also material for building air bases in Siberia.

In time we may get air bases in Siberia, but when we do Stalin will have something to say about the Cairo pronouncement for restoring Manchukuo to China. Both Manchuku and Korea may be welcomed as sisters of the union of Soviet republics.

WORDS TO WATCH

* *

There is a tendency to pronounce the word NONCHALANT as "NON'shuh-LLAWNT," and RESTAURANT as "RESS' tuh-RAWNT." These mispronunciations are apparently the result of trying to make the words sound French. True, they are French, but the French pronunciations are quite unlike those noted above. American dictionary preponderance places the accent on the first syllable only, and obscures the "a" of the third syllable, thus:

NON-shuh-l'nt
RESS-toe-r'nt

KINDERGARTEN is not "KIN-dee-GAHR-d'n." Notice the "r" and the "t." Better say: KIN-der-GAHR-t'n.

A COCCUS is a sphere-shaped bacteria. The word is used as a prefix, as in streptococcus (singular), streptococci (plural), and streptococcic (adjective). Notice how the "c's" change in sound:

STREP-toc-KOK'uss
STREP-toc-KOK-sigh
STREP-toc-KOK'sik

Parlez-vous francais? My French pamphlet will not teacr you the French language, but from it you will learn many useful phrases and words, with the pronunciations given in simple phonetic spelling. Send one to that soldier in the European theater. For a free copy, send a stamped (3c), self-addressed envelope to Frank Colby, in care of this paper. Ask for FRENCH CONVERSATION Pamphlet.

It's one thing to be as true as steel and another to have as good temper.

What's This---Another Secret Weapon?

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

WE REMEMBER

How much longer? The night wind sighing through the palm trees—Jap planes flying on to devastate—"too little and too late"—
Have we forgotten?
No; Although the soldier

Dunathan

corpse on far off beaches
Its own silent sermon
preaches
Of unpreparedness — of surprise attack — and infamy—
Still we remember, and remembering, fight on.
Thus will it ever be.
The wages of sin is death, they say—
Yet death itself can never right
a wrong
or change one iota of the scorn
we lay upon the heads of those who play
the game of treachery.
Somewhere in the scheme of things there sits
Someone with a book — and pen—
and writes therein
the story of Pearl Harbor and the shame
upon mankind that such can be.
The blame?
Upon the heads of warlord
Japs—
and yet within our laps
rests some of it.
For we have been a partner to it,
too,
Unwilling, yes, but a partner
nonetheless.
This we know is true:
If we had but championed the cause of right,
the cause of free men everywhere,
had made ourselves a partner in the fight against evil—evil would have had less force
to strike against us now.
We saw men enslaved in Korea
by the enemy we oppose—
Yet there were those who said their fight was not our fight,
their loss not our loss,
their right not our right.
Always there is evil, there is good—
How much better if we stood upon the side of good and fought then,
many years ago.
Today we would be stronger for that fight.
But the past is written.
The future holds the answer to our power,
whether for good or evil wield
it we must—
If for evil we crumble into dust, if for good we rise in glory to the sky
although our young men die.
And so the soldier corpse on far
off beaches
Its own sermon preaches.

* * *

There is the power and the glory—
and power with humility.
A little less glory, and little more humility
would have made Pearl Harbor
a different story.
"I hear planes approaching,"
the young soldier said.
But the gold braid shook his head.
Remember?
You bet we do!
In humbleness our power will grow
and the cause of right will best be served.
But if we flaunt our power and say,
as did the officer on that fatal
day,
"You're wrong, I'm right"—
we'll have trouble all the way.
It is in the bigger things it pays to hold to stubborn determination
if we are to exist as a nation.
In others we can be charitable.
For those of us today
who find it difficult to be charitable, remember this:
The casualties at Pearl Harbor and since represent a mingling of
races, creeds and colors.
The men who died for us are Jew,
Protestant and Catholic.
They are black and white, red and yellow—all Americans—
all fighting for America.
Remember Pearl Harbor?
It will be tragic if we forget.

—Clint Dunathan.

The Lyons Den

SOCIAL NOTE: When Col. Louis Johnson returned from his mission to India, he was ill and went directly to his home in Clarksburg, W. Va., before reporting to Washington. T. V. Soong, the Chinese Finance Minister, was anxious to learn the results of the mission and so he left Washington on the first train out to Clarksburg. Soong arrived at midnight, wearing a crumpled suit. He went to a hotel, and asked for a tailor to press his suit . . . "None around, at this hour," said the clerk. Soong offered a high reward, to no avail. He finally succeeded in borrowing an iron—and while the porter and clerk watched him, China's Finance Minister, brother of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, sponged and pressed the suit he wore.

THEATRE DEPT.: Pvt. Irwin Shaw, the playwright, returned from Africa this week. He was sent overseas during the rehearsals of his last play, "Sons and Soldiers," which Max Reinhardt and Norman Bel Geddes produced. This was Shaw's sixth play. His first was the pacifist play, "Bury the Dead." . . . The playwright revealed that on the night "Sons and Soldiers" opened on Broadway, he was in Accra, Africa, lying on a rope-cot in a tent with a whimpering monkey belonging to another soldier. "And of all the six opening nights I've had," he confessed, "this was the only one where I was able to get a good night's sleep."

That's tolerance, Morris." . . . "Maybe it was," Novik informed him, "but they made their broadcasts from different rooms."

DRAMA DEPT.: Last night Billy Rose presented Oscar Hammerstein's "Carmen Jones," a brilliant production such as Broadway hasn't seen in many years. This is Hammerstein's version of Zizet's opera "Carmen" . . . Jack Grumet, chief of the Homicide Bureau, who will prosecute Wayne Lonergan next month, watched the curtain descend as Joe plunges a knife into Carmen's heart. "Well, what do you think of it?" an excited first-nighter asked him. "She drove him insane, and there was no premeditation," the prosecutor replied, "so I'd say murder in the second degree."

RADIO: Arch Oboler, the radio producer-director-author, was sent by the Hollywood Victory Committee last week to address the Army Special Services conference in Atlanta. The conference was attended by 400 soldiers who are being taught to produce shows abroad . . . "You put on radio shows with Bette Davis, experienced actors, studio orchestras and expert sound-effects men," one soldier spoke up. "Let's see you do it without 'em" . . . "All right. I'll show you," Oboler agreed. He asked for volunteers from the audience, lectured them for 5 minutes on radio-acting, and then gave them one of his radio plays, "Dr. Croton" . . . The G. I. volunteers, unrehearsed, played it amazingly well. When the show was over, Oboler was told the truth—that every volunteer had been a professional radio actor.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington — Former Governor Alf Landon of Kansas had ample opportunity to open up on Wendell Willkie, had he been so minded, at his closed-door meeting with freshmen GOP Congressmen. However, Landon diplomatically held his fire, much to the disappointment of anti-Willkieites present.

Pearson

Representative Howard Buffet of Nebraska blew the whistle on Willkie at the very start of the meeting, introducing Landon as "a man who was neither a Socialist nor a Democrat before he received the Republican Presidential nomination, nor a New Dealer or bomber traveller afterward."

Landon first read a prepared and rather dull diatribe denouncing New Deal domestic policies and warning Republicans against endorsing Roosevelt's Soviet-collaboration "until we know all the facts about the Moscow conference." Having finished this, he was peppered with provocative questions about Willkie.

Representative Louts Ebenezer Miller of Missouri inquired if Landon "ever intended to write a travelogue." The Kansan grinned this one off. He answered most other questions regarding Willkie in monosyllables and refused to mention Willkie by name at any time. However, he uncorked one indirect blast when asked if anyone had the Republican nomination "in the bag," a claim Willkie reportedly made when he addressed the GOP freshmen some weeks back.

"That's perfectly absurd, and I don't care who said it," Landon replied. "No one can say at this time who will be the party nominee in 1944.

—ALMOST SECRETARY OF WAR—

Landon was his usual colorless self and the meeting dragged badly in spots. However, all ears pricked up when the Kansan gave an inside account of how he was "almost appointed Secretary of War during the 1940 campaign.

He rad received a feeler on the Cabinet appointment from Frank Altschul of New York, relative of former Governor Lehman. When Landon evinced interest, Altschul, according to Lanton, arranged a White House luncheon at' which the matter was to be talked over. However, Landon chose this moment to issue a public blast against a third term for Roosevelt and the luncheon was called off.

This was in June, 1940, shortly before Frank Knox was named Secretary of the Navy and Henry Stimson became Secretary of War. According to Landon, Knox authorized him to issue a statement stating that both he and Landon would refuse Cabinet appointments.

"I told Frank Knox that he should make his own statement," Landon revealed. "I had called a press conference for 3:30 in the afternoon to make my announcement and suggested to Knox that he meet the press at 4."

At the last minute, Knox changed his mind. Later, he told Landon that he was convinced Roosevelt wouldn't run for a third term. According to Landon, Knox asked the President bluntly if he would run again. "My nerves wouldn't stand it," the President told Knox, according to Landon.

"The President phoned me long-distance when I returned to Kansas and apologized for cancelling the luncheon," Landon added. "He said that it had only been postponed and invited me to the White House the next time I came to Washington."

However, there were no more feelers regarding a Cabinet post, the Kansan remarked. Shortly afterward, Henry Stimson was named Secretary of War.

—PROTECTING THE PRESIDENT ABROAD—

The only people in the U. S. A. who are really made unhappy by the Presidents' travels—especially overseas—are the Secret Service. They spend sleepless nights until he comes home again, worried that something may happen.

On last winter's overseas junket to Casablanca, an extraordinary measure of protection was taken. Nothing like it has ever been seen in the history of the world. A great armada of ships of all kinds, mostly fighting ships, was assembled near the bulge of Brazil, and also near the bulge of West Africa. The ships moved out along the path which the President was to follow and practically covered every square mile of the Atlantic at this narrow crossing.

The President himself was flying overhead in a Pan American clipper, and the purpose of the ships was to form what the Navy called a "net" of protection. It was to serve the President as the net in the circus serves the trapeze artists. If the President's plane were forced down into the sea, no matter where, there would be at least one ship at that spot to rescue him.

No such plan was used on his latest trip, however. The mode of protection cannot now be revealed, but when the story is told, it will show an entirely different strategy.

—CAPITAL CHAFF—

Diplomatic grapevine reports that the State Department is in for a delightful satire in Sidney Baron's forthcoming book, "One Whirl." Those who have peeped at advance proofs say the appeasement boys won't like it . . . Ohio's Republican Congressman Rowe says that Ohioans are determined that one of their favorite sons—either Taft or Bricker—get the GOP nomination for this reason: Victory in the election would make Ohio the mother of Presidents. At present, Ohio and Virginia are tied with seven Presidents each. Ohio wants one more . . . Incidentally, Rowe says colleagues reported him erroneously to the effect that he thought Willkie could carry the Akron labor area as against Bricker. It's the other way around, says Rowe.

Stirring Oration At Elks Memorial Service Sunday

The supreme importance of character and the inevitability of judgment were stressed in the inspiring oration delivered by Rev. James G. Ward, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church, at the annual Elks memorial service, conducted Sunday afternoon, at the Elks Temple, by Escanaba Lodge, No. 354, B. P. O. E., in tribute to its departed members.

"The uppermost thought in our minds today is the memory of the departed members of this Lodge of Elks," Rev. Mr. Ward said in opening his oration. "I therefore, take as my text Revelation, Chapter 20, Verse 12: 'I saw the dead, small and great stand before God, and the books were opened, and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works.'

"Reference is made over and over again in the Bible to records which are kept of our lives on earth before God, and when the judgment day comes, 'the books will be opened.' In a manner like radio words, our spoken words on earth are written on the atmosphere, and our acts on the solids of the earth. That thought may appear fanciful, but there are other books we write on earth, in which our record on earth for good or bad is clearly written.

"Your words and acts are written on the book of your memory. Hundreds of drowning persons tell us that during the last few moments of consciousness, they recollected many things they seemed to have forgotten. On the judgment day the book of your memory will be opened.

"Then there is the book of your character. Character is the only permanent possession we have when death comes. Character is what a man is, reputation what people think he is. The book of your character will be opened on the judgment day to register your salvation or condemnation.

"The character of the average individual," the pastor continued, "is tremendously important from every point of view. It represents the character of our Americanism.

"We talk about the four freedoms for the world after the war, but we cannot call them our own unless we have the right character to deserve them. All we really have now is the opportunity to win them.

Penalty of Selfishness

"We have been inclined to look down upon the Wops, Chinks, and we thought the Japs would be a push-over any time. Now we realize that if the Chinks had not been fighting the Japs for over six years, by this time they would have joined up with the Axis powers through Asia, and our victories in Africa, Sicily and Italy would still be a dream. We just became isolationists, another name for selfishness, and forgot about our duty to the world—our neighbors. Policitians in congress refused to fortify Guam and other outposts in the Pacific, and to maintain our dominence in the air of 1930. We forgot, England forgot, France forgot that we lived in the same world as Mussolini and Hitler, and we let these gangsters do as they pleased. Now we are paying the price because our Americanism did not sufficiently believe in the Fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

"Another book that will be opened on the judgment day is the book of our influence on the impermanently written on the characters of others. That record is acters of our neighbors, and the pathetic and sad thing is that our sin in this respect cannot be neutralized by our repentance.

"Another book that will be opened is the book of God's omniscience, by which He knows all things."

Rev. Ward then paid a tribute to the departed members. He said: "They rest from their labors, they now life the soul-life, their condition is one of profound penitence, they are still conscious, they think, love, pray and remember, and we trust they still grow in grace and good works.

"Let us remember that 'God shall bring into judgment every work, with every secret thing whether it be good or whether it be evil.'"

Traditional Order

The memorial followed the traditional order of the service from the time of its inauguration, the impressive and deeply-moving ceremonies, conducted by the lodge officers, and the music presented by the Senior high school orchestra, and the Orpheus Choral Club, under the direction of R. P. Bowers, the selections outstanding in beauty of melody and ensemble work. The customary closing of the service was Pasternack's "Taps," with William Moras, bugler.

Ushers at the service were Juel Lee, William Shepeck and Emerson Harvey. The program of the memorial was arranged by Briton W. Hall.

Mrs. Walter Davidson of Boston has left for the west coast after a visit with her sisters in Escanaba, Mrs. Joseph Gaffney and Mrs. Jane Koppes.

"The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Briton W. Hall during the ceremony.

The Worthy Patron, S. E. Dunn, was escorted to his station by the Marshal, who is Mrs. Dunn, through a triangle formation and Mrs. Hall's solo during this ceremony was "Homing." The Associate Matron, Marion Hibbard, also was escorted to her station by the Marshal, through a semicircle formed by the officers, and as she took her place, her daughter, Mary Louis Hibbard, sang "Mother O' Mine."

Presented With Roses

At the close of the ceremonies, Mr. Hall sang "God Bless America," and Mrs. Leiper sang "My Task," the latter number requested by the Past Matron, Mrs. Olson, and dedicated to her officers.

Mrs. Olson was presented with a bouquet of roses, the gift of her officers, Mrs. Hibbard making the presentation, and presentation of numerous other gifts, as is customary, took place during the ceremonies.

Following the installation, refreshments were served in the dining hall, the tables attractively decorated in holiday colors. Miss Ellen Gunderson and her committee were in charge of the social.

Her husband, who attended the Gwinn schools, is employed at the Princeton mine.

Junior Red Cross Provides Holiday For Armed Forces

Students in art classes of the Escanaba high school have been active in lending their talents to help bring Christmas cheer to the men in the armed forces. They have made numerous items to be used for the holidays, sponsored by the Junior Red Cross.

Shipment was made yesterday of the following:

150 hand made greeting cards, beautifully designed in the Christman theme; also 55 Christmas cards especially designed for the navy. These were made by students in the Junior and Senior high schools, supervised by Miss Kranztover. Christmas cards ready for mailing are distributed by the Red Cross to men in service who are in positions where they could not get them otherwise.

100 carnival caps made by seventh graders and supervised by Miss Kranztover, were sent directly to Fort Brady.

200 nut cups made by the fifth and sixthe grades in the Webster school under supervision of Miss Ahdell LaVesque went to Fort Custer. They were cleverly made by using red, white and blue stands with Christmas holly decorating the cups. Twelve pounds of assorted salted nuts went with the cups.

Recently 100 menu covers were made by the eighth graders for the U. S. Naval hospital at Great Lakes. They were artistically designed for the occasion and sent in time for Thanksgiving, under supervision of Miss Kranztover.

Please do your Christmas Shopping patiently...

THIS YEAR store people are working harder than ever to make your Christmas shopping successful. But they are working under enormous difficulties—with new wartime problems of supply, personnel and delivery, added to the usual rush of holiday buying.

You can do many things to help them—and yourself. Simple and easy things like making a detailed shopping list to save time at the counters . . . buying at less busy hours . . . and carrying purchases home with you. Before you start out each morning, write these words at the top of your shopping list: "BE PATIENT!"

For months, stores have been working out ways to make your Christmas shopping quick and easy. For example, many stores have located their National Cash Registers and wrapping desks in positions convenient to every section. When the customer ahead of you pays for her purchase and the clerk records it on the Cash Register, you know you don't have to wait. National Cash Registers save valuable time on both sides of the counter during the holiday season just as they do all through the year.

Let's put the Christmas spirit into our Christmas shopping this year by remembering to shop early and shop patiently. . . . The National Cash Register Company, Dayton, O.—344 Offices in the U. S. and Canada.

HOLIDAY TRAVEL WILL BE HEAVY

Despite Appeal Of ODT, All Pullman Space Is Booked

A forehanded American public already has booked almost all the railroad Pullman space available for Christmas holiday travel.

There are few seats still to be had on the super-coach trains which require a reservation. This means a mad scramble for unreserved coach seats in the few days before December 25—and at least as bad a jam in the week or so after Christmas.

All this adds up to the prospect of the heaviest passenger travel the railroads have ever known.

Since eastern railroads have voluntarily limited their advance sales to 30 days it is only in the past 10 days that most people have been able to make their return-trip reservations as well as their pre-Christmas space. Western roads have a two-month limit.

What Survey Shows

A survey yesterday of the situation at the key travel points of New York, Washington, Chicago and San Francisco, turned up these highlights:

The Rock Island Railroad is booked solid until January 15 on its trains out of Chicago to the West Coast. It has few reservations for the final half of January.

Illinois Central's Chicago-to Florida trains have no more reservations for December. If space for January and February could be sold now, most of it would be gone.

Holiday reservations on trains in and out of Washington are very scarce but they still can be found if the traveler isn't particular about when he goes. All railroads operating through there say that almost all space in the period December 18-23 is gone and there are not many seats available even as late as January 3.

Situation Better in New York

The situation seems to be somewhat better on trips out of New York but the space that is left is only a small percentage of the total—and it's going fast, the railroad passenger traffic chiefs say.

Adding to this year's travel burden, compared with last year, is the increased number of service men. The size of the armed forces today is about twice what it was a year ago and many of these men will want to get home for Christmas. Many friends and relatives will visit camps, too.

The Army, it is reported, will limit to 10% of a camp's personnel the number who may be granted a furlough between mid-December and mid-January. The Navy and other service branches are expected to take similar action.

O.D.T. Moves to Discourage Travel

Meantime, the Office of Defense Transportation is pulling all the strings it knowns to dissuade civilians from traveling during this peak holiday period. Here are its chief moves:

A special 1½-minute newsreel, "Is Your Trip Necessary?" has been prepared by the movie industry and will be shown all over the country, encouraging people to stay at home. O.D.T. is going on the radio, too! Director Joseph B. Eastman on a nation-wide radio hook-up in about a week, will ask people even to defer business trips whenever they can.

Word has been sent to 3,000 trade associations to request their members to refrain from granting leaves or vacations during the holidays to workers who might take train or bus trips.

Departments of the Federal Government also have been asked not to give employes any of their annual leavec if a trip is involved.

PEARL HARBOR ANNIVERSARY

By Joseph Auslander

THIS is the day when infamy,
Hidden by the rising sun,
Proved the fawning Jap to be
As adept in treachery
As his fellow-Hun.

While, on this black day of days,
Sugared words drip from his lips,
Even while the honey phrase
Wins his ambush new delays,
His bombs blast our ships.

We have stern amends to make
For our folly and our trust;
We have come to know the snake,
We shall beat him down and break
His foulness in the dust.

Every ship he sank that day,
Every sailor, every son
Of our soil he shall repay
With his best, for we shall slay
His hundred for our one.

Let there be no compromise
With this thing of slime and mud,
But with clear courageous eyes
Let us crush him till he lies
Prostrate in his blood.

For our dead no pity crave,
Beg no tears, no medals ask,
Only that we mark the wave
Of their ever-wandering grave
With the finished task.

NAVIGATION TO END THIS WEEK

Movement Of Iron Ore Will Total About 85 Million Tons

While the iron ore shipping ended at the Chicago and North Western railway docks in Escanaba Friday afternoon, the movement of the vital red mineral continues from ports at the western end of Lake Superior and finis will not be written to the 1943 navigation season until the end of this week.

A. T. Wood, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, Cleveland, estimates the ore movement at the end of the season will total almost 85 million gross tons, or about one and a half million tons short of the 86½ million goal for this year.

The grain movement will be approximately 180 million bushels in American ships as compared to 111 million bushels last year. The coal traffic on the lakes will total about 45 million net tons.

The Roving Reporter

By ERNIE PYLE

Allied Headquarters, Algiers (by wireless)—All along the endless American ferry network that stretches in a dozen entwining lines around the globe there is one main worry obsessing our troops. And that is they feel they are not doing enough to help win the war.

Pyle

At these posts, so far from enemy action, life comes pleasantly routined and monotonous, and finally a sense of frustration sets in. The men live in usually excellent permanent quarters. They have good food and all the physical comforts—and nothing ever happens. Gradually they get a feeling of backwash.

They're ashamed of fighting the war so comfortably and so many thousands of miles from danger. They are worrying about facing the homefolks after the war, and saying they served throughout the war in a place where they bathed every day, slept on mattresses and never missed a meal.

There's a saying all along the route of the Air Transport Command which expresses their feelings about being where they are.

The saying goes, "Take down your Service Flag, mother, your boy is in the ATC."

* * *

In one camp the boys felt this so keenly that the editor of the camp newspaper asked me if I could say something to sort of reassure them that they are really were contributing their share. And I could say so honestly. Manning these fields that hand our flow of bombers and fighters on toward the combat zone is just as vital as manning a frontline field. Without it, the planes would never get there.

Soldiers are sent; they aren't asked. It's not these boy's choice or fault they happen to be where they are. And as for what the people at home think, I've found they don't really distinguish much between frontline and some remote area. I've known soldiers stationed for a year in Morocco, nearly a thousand miles from the fighting, whose parents and friends thought they daily were bleeding and dying.

Just so long as you're overseas the folks at home give you all the credit. Somebody has to man these remote outposts and it's just the fall of the cards that brought some soldiers there instead of into the front lines. I see nothing shameful about living well as long as you're not depriving somebody else. I see no virtue in suffering unless it helps somebody else.

Now and then you get a grouchier who complains bitterly about the place he is, how tough life is there and how he'd like to be back home. One officer along the way said when he got a fellow like that, he just assigned him a job unloading hospital planes bringing wounded back from Africa, and the fellow soon was cured.

Other boys themselves usually shut up a groucher pretty quickly for it is their consensus that fighting monotony and sometimes malaria is still better than fighting bullets and bombs. And that although they'd rather be at the front, they're actually mighty lucky to be where they are and should be grateful even though a little ashamed.

The mere fact that this worry and sense of shame is so universal throughout the ferry fields seems to be unarguable proof that the average American soldier is still an all right guy.

* * *

Actually, in many parts of the world where our troops are stationed, malaria is almost as great an enemy as the Germans or Japs. The wounded will not be the only aftermath of the war. Scores of thousands of our men will return home to be sick for years from disease picked up despite all medical precautions in these steaming, filthy corners of the globe.

On this trip we came into one field in the American tropics at the tail end of a malaria scourge. For some reason it has been much worse this fall than the previous year. Fifty-five percent of the personnel had been down with malaria. Tropical Africa is swarming with medical sanitary specialists sent over from America to see it doesn't happen again next year.

* * *

On the central African coast, soldiers who have been overseas a year are now getting 10-day furlough. They are flown to rest camps in the north. It isn't so much that they need rest as a change from the monotony. The rest camps are lovely places, but dull.

What the average American soldier wants on leave is female companionship and a little bottled stimulation, both of which are very limited in these parts.

I've heard lots of soldiers overseas say they would rather not have a furlough or go to a rest camp if by not going they could get home that much sooner.

FLIGHT BOARD COMING DEC. 9

17 Year Olds Will Get Examinations Here Thursday

Seventeen year old youths of Escanaba and vicinity will be given an opportunity to take their mental screening test and preliminary physical examination for Army Aviation Cadet training when representatives of the Army Air Forces set up headquarters for a single day at the local Elks club on December 9.

Seventeen year olds who pass their preliminary tests will be provided with free transportation to and from Truax Field, Madison, Wis., where they will take their final physical examination. Those qualifying will be sworn into the Air Corps Enlisted Reserve and placed on an inactive status until they reach the age of eighteen. Handsome silver wings which may be worn with civilian dress will be awarded successful applicants to identify them as members of the Army Air Forces.

Stress $27,000 Education

Lt. John E. Sage, head of the travelling board, urged every youth of Escanaba and vicinity to take advantage of this opportunity to qualify for aviation cadet training without having to go all the way to recruiting headquarters in Milwaukee. "The five months college education, special physical training program, and the period of intensive flight training offered to Army aviation cadets represent an investment worth upwards of $27,000," said Lt. Sage. "Youths who qualify for this program will put themselves in line to learn a flying career that will put them on top of the post-war world," he declared.

Parents Invited

Parents wishing to receive first hand information on what Army aviation cadet training has to offer their sons are invited to accompany them when they come to the Elks club for their interview, according to Lt. Sage. "We would like it to be fully understood that no youth will be asked to sign up for aviation cadet training unless he is fully ready to do so. While we would like to qualify as many youths as possible, anyone seeking information alone is welcome to call on us," said the lieutenant.

The color films, taken and shown by the conservation department, include the following: ducks and geese in their natural habitat; canoe trails showing trips down the Tahquamenon and Paint Rivers, and showing the Tahquamenon Falls in color; forest harvesting, depicting modern methods of logging and lumbering; and commercial fishing on the Great Lakes.

Scoutmaster William Stephens, head of Troop 62, Scouts of the troop, and their fathers, will be special guests of the Lions club at the dinner and program.

No charge will be made for admission to these pictures, Lions club officials announce. All persons interested in nature films are urged to be present at 8 p. m. The pictures have been shown in many localities in the state and have met with enthusiastic approval.

Anti-Tuberculosis Christmas Seals Being Sold Here

Annual Christmas Seal Sale, for the benefit of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association, is underway in Manistique.

Schools again this year are cooperating with the state Association, according to school officials. Students have been supplied with Seals and this week are conducting a selling campaign throughout the city.

At the same time, citizens whose names appear on a mailing list at the Lansing headquarters have received the usual quota of Christmas seals through the mails. Most home owners have been sent seals, it was pointed out, and are urged to send their contributions to state headquarters.

Through this annual sale of Christmas seals—postage stamp-sized seals bearing an oppropriate design with the inscription of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association—the work of caring for persons afflicted with the tuberculosis disease is carried on. The sale has been successful each year, it was said, and has resulted in funds which have gone far in decreasing the spread of tuberculosis.

Plan Commission Desires Names Of Local Servicemen

The Manistique city planning commission desires to procure the name, home address and present address of local men and women in the service.

Relatives are urged to list this information and mail it to the city planning commission, Manistique. As this information is needed at once, they urge that it be mailed today.

BRUKARDT IS HERO

Menominee—U. S. Marines, who captured Tarawa after a bloody 72-hour battle with the Japs, today sung the praises of Lieut. Herman Brukardt, Jr., 29-year-old Menominee surgeon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman R. Brukardt of 630 Parmenter street, who treated over 100 patients in the first 36 hours of the battle and lost only four patients, although he was forced to operate at times by flashlight.

The story was told today by Marine Corps combat correspondents who said that Lieut. Brukardt and three assistants took over a Jap pillbox after Marine snipers had cleared it out and used it for a makeshift hospital while still under fire.

Marines said that they had never seen a man with more sheer nerve and stamina.

He is a graduate of Marquette university and Menominee high school.

SPECIAL BOND SALE BEGINS

Merchants Selling Bonds To Commemorate Pearl Harbor Week

Commemorative stickers will be attached to every war bond sold this week—Pearl Harbor Week—through any of the local retailers, Charles Manson, chairman of the Pearl Harbor Week bond drive, has announced.

Persons intending to give war bonds as Christmas gifts are especially urged to buy them from a retail merchant this week in order that the Pearl Harbor sticker will be attached.

Chairman Manson stated that the county quota for the month of December is $5512 and that most of this fund should be realized during Pearl Harbor Week. Merchants now have the necessary supplies, including application blanks and receipts, and are prepared to sell war bonds direct to their customers.

"Pearl Harbor Week is being observed throughout the state with special bond drives in force", Mr. Manson said. "We must not forget Pearl Harbor. Just two years ago when the Japs made their sneak attack which forced us into war, everyone was fighting mad and ready to do anything and everything within his power to avenge that atrocity. However, things have been going in our favor of late, with the result that some people are inclined to ease up in their personal efforts to help speed victory. We should all remember the events of two years ago, and pledge ourselves to do everything we possibly can to help bring the war to its end. The big thing we should all do is buy more bonds and stamps. It will be a reminder to our enemies that we have not forgotten Pearl Harbor and that we are backing our fighting men to the limit."

Big Cut in Beef Ration Points in Effect This Week

Under the new point reduction plans on meats, which went into effect this week, it is estimated that there will be more than a half pound more meat per person per week, according to the OPA office here.

New point values were effective December 5 on beef, and the reduction in pork points, in effect since November nineteenth, has combined to give home owners more meat for three points since rationing began.

The reason that the OPA is able to reduce the point values of meat at this time, the rationing board here points out, is that there is more meat available for civilians than there has been at any time since rationing began. OPA's job is to divide all the civilian supply of a rationed food fairly among the people who need it, it was shown. When OPA is alotted more food to divide, it means that the point values can be lowered so that everybody can have a bigger share.

So we may expect to see lower point values for meat, according to the local rationing office, just as long as the home front supply of meat justifies them.

In connection with point reduction on pork, the local rationing office quoted administrator Chester Bowles as saying: "All too often in the past, the OPA has been forced by wartime necessity to reduce rather than increase civilian allowances. But when it is possible to add to the individual's allowance, as in this case with pork, OPA is just as happy as civilians are. A number of pork cuts are now only one or two points per pound. These changes will be noted in the December Point Value Table, posted at meat counters.

WILL REOPEN AIR ROUTE

Sault Ste. Marie — Pennsylvania-Central Airlines planes will resume service to the Sault Ste. Marie area just as soon as war conditions permit, PCA President C. Bedell Monro said today. PCA operated to this city from Norfolk and Knoxville over a route suspended shortly after the outbreak of war.

"The Civil Aeronautics Board," said Monroe, "decided that PCA could best serve the interest of the war by continuing to operate routes on which we could use the least number of planes to serve the greatest areas with the greatest speed."

And mother doesn't know. So she answers the same way she's answered a hundred times . . .

"Not so many days . . . we hope. Daddy can't come home to us until the war is over. Until we win, you know."

Nobody can tell the thousands of bewildered little hearts when their Daddies will come home.

Nor the millions of other Americans when their husbands, or sons, or sweethearts will be back.

The tragic truth is that many of them will never see their loved ones again. Never.

But this we do know . . .

Every minute by which the war can be shortened means fewer lives lost—fewer white crosses on a lonely hillside.

Your job is to put every dollar you can possibly dig up into War Bonds. The fighting equipment bought by your dollars will hasten the day of Victory . . . the day when the boys come marching home.

Don't slacken your Bond purchases while victory is within our grasp! Never let it be said that while the attack grows stronger on the fighting fronts, we at home failed to back it to the very limit of our ability.

Dig down deeper. Buy extra War Bonds. Help shorten the war by those vital minutes—or days, or months—which mean American lives saved!

KEEP ON BACKING THE ATTACK!

Eskymos Expect Close Fight Tonight With Kingsford Quintet

TEAMS APPEAR WELL MATCHED

Tipoff Scheduled For 8:15 At Junior High Gym

The Eskymos will oppose the Kingsford Flivvers at the junior high school gymnasium tonight in a basketball game that bears promise of being another of those ding-dong battles like the one that had the fans clutching at their seats here last Friday night, when Escanaba lost to Marquette, 40 to 39. The tipoff is scheduled for 8:15 o'clock.

The Flivvers dropped their opener to Menominee last weekend, 31-24, but only after a nip and tuck battle right up to the closing minutes of play. Kingsford is reported to have a rangy, cool quintet showing lots of promise.

Coach Ruwitch may shift the lineup somewhat for the Kingsford game. Scott may start at guard in place of Glavin and Schils is making a bid for a starting berth at forward.

Ranguette at center, Kuchenberg at forward and Peterson at guard are definitely slated for the starting lineup.

Kingsford is expected to start Paternoster at center, Weber and Kosovec, forwards; Renish and Lachine, guards.

The Eskymos yesterday devoted some attention to mistakes that cost them a victory in the thrilling game here last Frady with Marquette. Coach Ruwitch sought more aggressiveness and encouraged more shooting from his players within range of the hoop. Only Ranguette and Kuchenberg did much firing at the bucket against Marquette. Ranguette hanged away at the hoop 32 times, hitting for 10 field goals.

Treado and Vanni of Negaunee will officiate.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The Packers concluded their football season Sunday with a 38 to 28 victory over the Phil-Pitt Steagles. As usual, Don Hutson was the star of the game, scoring 20 points for the Packers. It was probably Hutson's last game in professional football and his performance against the Steagles was a fitting climax to the most amazing career in the history of the sport.

For the last two seasons Hutson has announced his retirement from professional football, only to yield each time to the demands of his teammates and many friends. It is generally believed that this time he will hang up his football equipment for good.

• • •

No man has contributed more to football than Don Hutson, who ranks today as the greatest individual star of all time. The sticky fingered Hutson has established a standard of perfection that has been the most important factor in raising the quality of pro football to its present level.

• • •

Duck hunters generally were disappointed in the wildfowl season this year. Reports from Canadian breeding grounds in September indicated the downward flight would be the largest in many year and that the kill would be correspondingly high. Actually fewer ducks were bagged in this area in 1943 than a year ago and hunters reported that the flight ducks were conspicuous by their absence.

Some sportsmen have explained that decrease in flight ducks in this area by declaring that the western prairie states offered greater attraction to the migratory birds on their downward journey—an abundance of feed and favorable water levels.

Maybe these birds are getting smarter and they've learned to read the weather chart and the newspapers.

Mrs. Oscar Olson didn't attend the Marquette-Escanaba basketball game Friday night, the first time since 1926 that she has missed a home game. That's an attendance record that deserves special commendation. Mrs. Olson also missed a football game or two during the past season for the first time since way back when.

• • •

Mrs. Olson not only attends the Eskymos' games with regularity but she also is one of the noisiest boosters. The Marquette game proved to be one of the most exciting here in years. Mrs. Olson missed that game only because of lack of transportation. Her attendance may have been just that little bit added that may have brought the Eskymos to victory instead of a 40-39 defeat. It might pay the Eskymos to check up on Mrs. Olson's transportation in the future . . . just for luck.

Redskins Lose To New York Giants In Grid League

Philadelphia, Pa.—The great Don Hutson caught two touchdown passes in the last quarter here Sunday to lead the Green Bay Packers to a 38-28 victory over the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Steagles in the closing game of the National Football league season for both teams. These two scores, along with a second period field goal and five conversions, gave Hutson 20 points for the day.

A crowd of 34,294 spectators, a record pro football turnout in Shibe park, thrilled to the performances of the agile Green Bay end, whose showing here was probably his last on the gridiron. They had a few cheers, too, for the hard fighting Steagles, who held the Packers to 14-14 draw in the first period, went behind at the half, 17-14, and then came back with a rush to close the gap to 31-28 in the final period.

Pass interceptions played a prominent part in the Packer victory. They picked off six tosses by the Steagles and several of these set up touchdowns.

INDOOR SORT SKEDS SET UP

Michigan Athletes Have Busy Program This Winter

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 6 (AP)—With more than a score of home events on tap, the University of Michigan's indoor sports campaign promises to be the brightest spot on the state's war-blurred collegiate athletic map this winer.

Wolverine officials returned from the Western Conference schedule pow-pow in Chicago with date-books satisfactorily filled in five sports, including basketball, swimming, track, wrestling and baseball. An exception was hockey Coach Eddie Lowrey, who found Minnesota the only other conference school to venture onto the ice this season.

The Michigan basketballers, who play their second game of the season at Romulus tonight, have 16 more contests and launch a 12-tilt conference season against Northwestern here Jan. 7.

The Wolverines encounter five conference foes twice each, including Northwestern and Purdue, currently being boomed with Michigan as outstanding contenders. Wisconsin, Ohio State and Indiana also will be met twice while single engagements are scheduled with Illinois and Chicago.

Swimmers Resting

Michigan's swimming, wrestlers and track seasons will not begin until after the first of the year. Highlights of the natators' campaign will be the National AAU indoor championship which Coach Matt Mann bagged for Michigan at the AAU meeting in Columbus. it will be held the last weekend in March or the first weekend in April. The swimming campaign which opens Jan. 8 with the state AAU meet here includes dual meets with Northwestern, Ohio state and Purdue.

The wrestlers, opening Jan. 8 at Ohio State, have four dual meets and the conference championships at Northwestern Feb. 19. Michigan's track squad which looms as strong as some peacetime Wolverine powerhouses has an abbreviated regular season, including dual meets with Western Michigan and Notre Dame and a triangular with Illinois and Notre Dame.

Although a match with the London, Ont., Athletic club team here Saturday is the the only hockey event booked to date, Coach Lowrey hopes to arrange a substantial schedule with other independent teams.

Complete indoor schedules:

Basketball—Dec. 11, Fort Custer; Dec. 18, Western Michigan; Jan. 1, at Western Michigan; Jan. 7, Northwestern; Jan. 8, Illinois. Jan. 14-15, at Wisconsin; Jan. 18, at Fort Custer; Jan. 21-22, at Purdue; Jan. 28-29, Ohio State; Feb. 4-5, Indiana; Feb. 12, at Chicago; Feb. 19, at Northwestern.

Swimming — Jan. 8, Michigan AAU championships; Jan. 15, at Northwestern; Jan.22, Ohio State; Jan. 29, Purdue; Feb. 12, Northwestern; Feb. 19, conference meet at Northwestern national intercollegiate championships, place and date to be decided; National AAU, Ann Arbor, date to be decided.

Wrestling — Jan. 8, at Ohio State; Jan. 22, Purdue; Feb. 5, Northwestern; Feb. 12, at Indiana; Feb. 19, conference meet at Northwestern.

Track—Feb. 12, Western Michigan; Feb. 19, Notre Dame; March 4, Illinois and Notre Dame at Illinois; March 11, conference meet at Chicago; March 18, Purdue relays; March 25, Chicago relays.

PRO LOOP ENDS SEASON SUNDAY

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP)—The National Football League will close one of its most successful seasons Sunday with attendance for the 40-game schedule reaching the 1,072,469 mark—an increase of 36.7 per cent over last year for each game.

The turn-stile figure, announced today by league officials, is based in advance of the Redskins-New York Giant game at Washington Sunday, which already is a sell-out with a crowd of some 35,500 expected.

Last year's 55-game chart attracted 1,079,148 fans, an average of 19,620 per game. This season's average is 26,811.

One reason for the increase, officials said, is that fans were attracted to pro football when some colleges in the East suspended the sport for the duration of the war. Another reason is that the league is more evenly balanced, resulting in a tighter championship race and increasing the chances of upsets.

Second Tilt Won By Michigan Five

Romulus, Mich., Dec. 6 (AP) — A University of Michigan basketball team won its second start of the pre-conference season from a Romulus army air base team here tonight, 42 to 30. Only civilian members of the Wolverine cage squad participated.

Michigan trailed through the first period, but with 13 minutes to go they grabbed the lead on free throws and never relinquished it. Romulus led, 16 to 13, at halftime.

Whitey Lund of the Wolverines was high in individual scoring with 11 points. Forward Wikel accounted for 10. Bob Lewis, a Romulus guard who won national honors playing for N. Y. U., topped the Fliers with nine.

Eastern Teams Keep Going With Limited Talent

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Dec. 6 (AP) — Late last summer, when the army announced it would not permit its trainees in colleges to play varsity football, Lehigh university announced it would not schedule games for its civilian football team with schools playing navy and marine students, and we wrote a story lauding that stand.

We didn't see, and still can't see, any percentage in a bunch of fuzz-faced 17-year olds going out there and getting their brains knocked out by a collection of older, more experienced and more rugged men, under the guise of sporting competition.

Well, we have a report now on how Lehigh, and its two fellow members of the middle three conference—Lafayette and Rutgers—fared this year on the gridiron, and are happy to discover they finished their seasons. If they had played the service-manned schools the season probably would have finished them.

Anyway, to back up into the history of the decision to try to play a civilian schedule, the presidents and athletic directors of the three schools held numerous meetings to map some kind of a plan for football during the war.

The most serious problem was the loss of students, about 250 out of a normal enrollment of 1,000 being left at Lafayette, and not many more at Lehigh. Each of the three schools also lost its coach, one by death, another by enlistment in the navy, and a third by leave of absence.

Attendance Slumps

It was agreed to try to keep the conference rivalry alive, and the three schools started practice Sept. 27. There were no preseason camps and the regular members of the physical education staff doubled as coaches — Ben Folfson at Lafayette, Harry Rockefellow at Rutgers and Leo Prendergrast at Lehigh.

It was discovered that many boys who ordinarily wouldn't report for football, not having been high school stars, came out for the teams, now that there was a chance of seeing some action, and some of these lads became quite proficient, proving in several instances they would have been good enough to play in normal times.

Competition was limited to two games between each of the three teams and to outside colleges which played only civilian students.

The attendance at the games was something short of sensational, but it was considered satisfactory, everything considered. About 7,000 attended each of the Lafayette-Rutgers games, 7,500 at the first Lafayette-Lehigh game, and 3,500 at the second. Rutgers won three of its five games, Lafayette four of five, and Lehigh lost five and tied one.

That attendance is a far cry from the crowds of the palmy days of the conference; days such as those of 1925 when Rutgers and Lafayette transplanted their game to neutral Princeton stadium to accommodate the fans, and drew about 40,000.

But the schools aren't kicking. All of which should be of encouragement to schools in similar circumstances, most of which dropped the sport this year.

Sinke Of Chicago Leads Pin Match

LITTLE URGES RULE CHANGES

Passing Anywhere From Behind Scrimmage Line Favored

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN

New York, Dec. 6 (AP)—Lou Little, football mentor at Columbia and chairman of the coaches' rules committee, recommended today that forward passing be allowed anywhere behind the line of scrimmage by collegians and that the tee be returned as a rest for the ball at the kickoff.

Using a pad and pencil during the interview while his ailing vocal cords got another day of rest, Little said he made the two suggestions in the belief that they would increase the offense.

Unrestricted forward passing behind the line of scrimmage already is a part of the professional football code and is one of the reasons the T-formation clicks so successfully for the Chicago Bears and the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Steagles. College passers must be five yards behind the line of scrimmage.

Little penciled that this suggested rule change not only would benefit all the college T-formations—"and there are likely to be more of them next year than there were this"—but that it also would increase the effectiveness of the double and single wing attacks.

Higher Kicks Urged

"It would mean the development of the quick forward pass to either end or the wingbacks which would cause the first line of secondary defense quite a bit of trouble," he wrote.

Little's plea that the use of the tee be permitted at the kickoff follows a season in which the out-of-bounds boot at the start of eastern games was as prevalent as pennant-waving alumni in the stands. The ball then was put in play on the receiving teams' 35-yard-line.

The voiceless mentor holds that the non-artificial tee would bring a higher, longer kick and would give the kicking team a chance to stop the ball carrier somewhere near the 20-yard line. The present, non-tee booting results in fast, low ball which is liable to long run backs because the defense does not have time to form.

"Seventy-five per cent of the time," Little added, "the kickoff is being kicked out of bounds so that unofficially we have no kickoff. That's unfortunate at the start of the games when everyone is keyed up.

"Unless use of the tee is permitted, as it was a decade ago and as the pros now do, why not drop the kickoff altogether and put the ball in play by a scrimmage?"

As an alternative, Little would have the ball go to the receiving team on the 50-yard line following an out-of-bounds kickoff.

Bear Stalker Is Stalked By Bear

Alamosa, Colo. (AP)—Stalking big game, Jack Allen of Olamosa turned around and found a 500-pound bear stalking him, at a distance of only 25 feet. Allen fired with his .30-.30 but only creased the bear's skull and it charged.

"I didn't know whether to run or shoot," says Allen." Then I remembered a snatch of advice from old timers. I waited until the bear was within five feet, standing upright, and then let him have a shot in the chest."

The bullet knocked the bear to the ground and Allen, not waiting to see if he was dead, fired four more bullets into him.

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP)—Butter, firm; receipts 373,426; no changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Dec. 6 (AP)—All grain futures prices were swept sharply higher today by general buying resulting from confusion over the effects of the upward adjustment in corn ceilings and temporary freezing of oats and barley at the highest prices prevailing between November 29 and December 3.

GAIN RECORDED IN WAR STOCKS

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Dec. 6 (AP)—Stocks with armament connections gave the best performance in today's market but top gains were established in most cases before the communique of the "big three" conferences at Teheran appeared on the news tickers.

Reading of the Iran declaration confirmed earlier forecasts that nothing in the way of a quick-peace promise would be contained in the Allied pronunciamento and the long-depressed war infants came to life, after a mixed opening, for gains running to a point or more. Steels, rubbers, aircrafts, motors and assorted rails were in front throughout but profit taking in the final hour trimmed peak prices substantially at the close. Dealings, fast on the morning come-back, slowed appreciably as trends faltered.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks held a net advance of .2 of a point at 48. The market was fairly broad, 862 individual issues registering on the tape. Of these, 473 were up, 719 down and 210 unchanged. Transfers of 823,500 shares compared with 557,870 Friday and were the largest since November 19.

American Ice preferred was a last-minute jumper, coming out in one block of 2,700 shares, up 5 points, and closing ahead 6 at 66. Pepsi-Cola, Allied Chemical, J. I. Case, Philip Morris and Pullman emerged with plus signs of a point or so each. Lesser gains were retained by U. S. Steel, Goodrich, Goodyear, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Chrysler, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Texas Co., Anaconda, Eastman Kodak and Sears Roebuck.

American Distilling was up better than a point on an initial transaction but retreated for a ¼ loss. General Motors, Consolidated Edison and Great Northern were a shade under water.

Forward movers in the curb included Cities Service, Niagara Hudson Power, Carrier Corp., American Gas, American Cyanamid "B" and International Petroleum. Turnover here was 162,755 shares versus 152,779 in the previous full session.

BOND TRADING LIGHT

New York, Dec. 6 (AP)—The bond market engaged in a series of sidewise movements that left prices little changed either way today. Trading was light and centered mostly in reorganization and secondary rails.

As measured by the Associated Press averages, the rails and industrials were a little higher, utilities and low-yields unchanged and foreign loans a shade lower. Sales of $7,354,800 compared with $7,034,100 last Friday.

Several bonds of the St. Paul were under, subjected to a persistent trickle of offerings all day, and ended down ¼ to 1 1-8 points, Katy 4½s and 5s lost ground along with Rock Island 4s and 4½s. There were others in the same class.

Modest advances were posted by North Western 4½s and 4 3-4s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Southern Pacific 4½s, Illinois Central, St. Louis 3s and Northern Pacific 3s.

The general run of industrials and utilities inclined to stay close to previously established positions. Columbia Gas 5s, Consolidated Cigar 3¼s and Crucible Steel 3¼s were among those rising. Lower trends were the rule for Consolidated Edison 3½s, Hudson Coal 5s and International Telephone 5s. U. S. governments were neglected.

Brazilian loans were lower but Argentine 4s and Cuba 5½s moved up in a quiet foreign dollar department.

LIEUT. SAMUELS COMING TODAY

To Complete Plans For Coast Guard Rally On Dec. 14

Lieutenant Leo S. Samuels, assistant director for temporary members of the United States Coast Guard Reserve, will arrive today from Chicago district offices to meet again the citizens' advisory committee arranging for the Coast Guard get-together and rally at Bonifas Memorial auditorium Dec. 14.

Mr. Samuels will have the members of the committee as his guests at luncheon in the Delta hotel tomorrow at 12:15 p. m. Places will be laid for thirty persons.

Reservation returns for the rally have been coming in to the Coast Guard captain-of-the-port office at a gratifying rate. A report on these and other statistical matters will be made to the committee members and members desiring in turn to report on their success in group canvass, will be heard. Thus the members of the committee will be given an opportunity to compare notes with the Coast Guard officers in order that their activities in the last few days of the drive may have increased effectiveness.

The inspirational rally will be highlighted by addresses by Lieut. Comm. Paul Date, director of temporary reservists in the Chicago district; and Lieutenant Samuels, one of the most popular speakers among officers of the district. The program will open with music by the Escanaba high school band, R. P. Bowers conducting to be followed by a tribute to the United States Coast Guard heroes who have made the supreme sacrifice in battle engagements or on hazardous duty. This will be given by Rev. James G. Ward, of St. Stephen's Episcopal church. A drill squad under arms from the port security detail will participate in the exercises. War movies, consisting of the latest navy department releases which have not yet been shown publicly, will close the program.

The rally is free to the public, and it is hoped the public, beyond those persons reached by special invitation, will attend. The purpose is to explain the work of temporary reservists in this area and the advantages of enrollment in this branch of Coast Guard war service. It is hoped to expand the enlistments in the Escanaba flotilla by at least 100 men.

Grand Marais— Alex McDonald has moved his family to Waukegan, Ill., where he will be employed in the fishing industry this winter.

Postmistress Mrs. E. L. Mulligan who was injured when she fell at her home several months ago, is able to be up and about now. She returned to the post-office Wednesday after an absence of seven weeks.

A program of songs and music was presented by Robert Mann, music instructor. Following the program, a business meeting was held, presided over by first vice-president, Mrs. Ruben LeClair, at which time it was decided to discontinue club meetings during the months of January and February. The library committee was authorized to purchase new books for the club library which is open to the public each Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Milton Touzel, Sr., outlined the plans for the children's Christmas party which will be held at the school on the afternoon of December seventh. The party is for all pre-school children and on up to grade six. Mrs. Irving Hill and Mrs. J. E. Wells volunteered to sponsor a party during the month of January, proceeds of which will be entered in the club's general fund.

At the close of the meeting, Mesdames Block, Petitpren, and Touzel, Sr., served refreshments.

On Being A Real Person

By Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick

Several Methods of Dealing With an Inferiority Complex

One study of 275 college men and women revealed that over 90 per cent of them suffered from gnawing, frustrated feelings of deficiency. The areas of their conscious interiority were manifold—physical incompetence, ill health, unpleasant appearance, lack of social charm, failure in love, low-grade intellectual ability, moral failure and guilt.

To say that this sense of being inferior springs from inability to meet the demands of society is only part of the truth. The final tussle is not so much between the individual and the demands of society, as within the individual, between his dreamed-of self and the self he thinks he actually is.

To be sure, the feeling of deficiency can never be taken at its face value as a true indication of real lack. Not alone the ill-born, hard-bestead, and handicapped face this problem, but the well endowed and fortunately circumstanced. While a witless dolt may be well content with himself, the winner of a Nobel Prize, whose dreams completely outdistance his accomplishments, may suffer from an inferiority complex.

• • •

Some deal with this problem by the smoke-screen method. Feeling inferior, and not wanting others to know it, the shy become aggressive, the embarrassed effusive, and the timid bluster and brag. One man, hitherto gentle and considerate in his family, suffered a humiliating failure. At once he began to grow a crust. He became domineering, harsh, dictatorial. Paradoxical though it is, in the days when he felt superior he behaved humbly and considerately, as though he felt inferior; when he felt inferior he began to swagger as though he were superior.

Others, like the fox in Aesop's fable, handle the problem of bitterly felt inferiority by calling sour all grapes they cannot reach. The frail youth discounts athletics; the debauchee, really suffering from a sense of guilt, scoffs at the self-controlled as prudes; the failure at school or college, deeply humiliated, scorns intellectuals as "high-brows"; the girl without charm exaggerates her liability, dresses crudely, adopts rough manners, deliberately looks her worst, professing lofty disdain of charm as a triviality. A major amount of cynicism springs from this source. Watch what people are cynical about, and one can often discover what they lack, and subconsciously, beneath their touchy condescension, deeply wish they had.

Others deal with this tension by fantasy. Unable in the real world to secure their longed-for eminence, they retreat into the world of daydream. Daydreaming in itself, is a useful faculty; it can furnish both harmless escape from boredom and struggle, and constructive suggestions for positive endeavor; but when it coincides with severe tension between the actual and the idealized self, it is commonly put to abnormal uses. The imagined world can become more vivid than the real world, and, habitually inhabiting this pictured paradise of fulfilled hopes, the individual can be disqualified for any constructive dealing with his actual self. In the end the pictured world may become so dominant that the individual passes over the border into abnormality.

Still others, facing the strain of a vished-for self, tantalizingly out of reach, turn in precisely the opposite direction—not to dream of hopes fulfilled, but to excuses and retreats based on an exaggerated acknowledgment of their inferiority. So one student, struggling with failure said: "I have come to the conclusion that I am feeble-minded!" This was announced with relief, not despair; it was a perfect excuse; it let him out from all responsibility. Indeed, the human organism often takes to this method subconsciously. Baffled by a sense of failure, the individual develops psychic illnesses, pseudo-maladies, neurotic disease.

By such unwholesome methods many evade the basic act of healthy self-acceptance. They have the admirable quality of aspiration, ambition, emulation, but they misuse it.

A Ford car yearning to be a Rolls Royce is absurd, but a Ford car that accepts itself can easily outlast and outserve, if it be well used, a Rolls Royce that is poorly handled, and it can travel some rough and crooked roads where a Rolls Royce cannot go or would be ridiculous if it did.

TOMORROW: A girl often develops more charm because she is homely.

Lions Club Holds Traditional Venison Deerslayer Banquet

Back in 1935, an organization known as the Deerslayers was formed within the membership of the Escanaba Lions club, and each year one new member is added to the select roster of the club after he has produced the meat for the club's annual venison banquet.

The ninth annual deer dinner was held last night, with L. A. Danielson furnishing the roast buck, after which he was formally accepted for membership in the Deerslayers by H. J. Yelland, who became a member in 1936. The complete roster of Deerslayers now includes: Mike Greis, 1935; Yelland, 1936; Matt Sullivan, 1937; Dr. Howard Johnson, 1938; Ed Jernstrom, 1939; George Coplan, 1940; Gus Krueger, 1941; Jim Frenn, 1942; and Danielson.

The club was entertained by a girl's vocal trio composed of Lois Jane Jensen, Mary Jean Ryan, Rosalie Peterson, and Jeanette Anderson, accompanist.

M. A. Trams was nominated as Deerslayer candidate for 1944, and received the silver bullet charm, emblematic of success in deer hunting.

Does Constipation Hang On?

When functional constipation symptoms hang on, and make you feel miserable, nervous and out of sorts, and you suffer from bad breath, headaches, indigestion and lack of appetite—and your stomach feels crowded because of gas and bloat—get Dr. Peter's time-tested Kuriko. More than a laxative, it's also a stomachic tonic medicine compounded of 18 of Nature's own medicinal roots, herbs and botanicals. Take only as directed on label. Kuriko helps expel constipation's gas and bloat and aids clogged up, sluggish bowels to eliminate waste matter. Be wise, comfort your stomach while relieving constipation. Be sure to get KURIKO today from any Fahrney agency, such as:

City Drug Store; West End Drugs

Housewives who use brown paper bags for garbage may deprive some soldier of K-rations because some paper mills which is largely dependent on waste paper cannot produce the paper cartons required for lack of waste paper.

Anders Magnus (Maney) Olson, 77, of 216 North Twelfth street, died at St. Francis hospital Sunday morning at 3:45 o'clock. He had been in poor health for several months, but was seriously ill only a week.

Mr. Olson was born in Elfsborgslan, Sweden, February 10, 1866. He came to Escanaba forty years ago, and up to the time of his retirement was a tie inspector for the Chicago & North Western railway. He was a member of the North Star lodge.

His only survivor is a nephew, Arthur Olson, of Engadine.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home where it is resting in state. Services will be held at the funeral home chapel at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. Karl J. Hammar of the Central Methodist church officiating, and burial will be made in Laeview cemetery.

Lake Sailors Will Get Winter Jobs

Cleveland, O.—Special machinery has been set up in local offices of the United States Employment Service in this region to quickly place Great Lakes seamen in winter jobs when the lake shipping season closes this month, Robert C. Goodwin, War Manpower Commission director of Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky, announced today.

"Thousands of jobs in essential industry are available for the 16,000 lake seamen during the winter lay-up months," he said, "and local USES offices in this and other regions are prepared to place these men in jobs quickly."

There is a wide range of jobs open to seamen, who will be referred to work which meets their individual qualifications. A long list of war-essential industries, including logging and mining activities as well as war plants in the cities, have placed orders with USES offices for large numbers of workers. Jobs are waiting for skilled, semi-skilled and unskilled men.

Offices of the U. S. Employment Service have complete details as to working conditions in industries in need of workers. The USES will refer seamen to essential employment and those possessing critical skills will be referred to jobs in those occupations. All jobs will be such that the seamen will be available to return to the lakes in the spring.

Continue Garbage Collections Here

The weekly collection of garbage by the city of Escanaba will continue as long as the weather stays mild to the degree where the garbage does not freeze in the cans, it was announced yesterday.

Collection of garbage by the city is late in ending this fall because of the mild weather prevailing so far. When garbage freezes in the containers the collections stop because the cans are damaged in trying to empty them.

Hospital

Mrs. H. C. Gerletti was admitted to St. Francis hospital suffering from pneumonia. No visitors will be permitted in her room.

SWEDEN'S ROLE IS EXPLAINED

Country As Neutral Aids Rest Of World, Says Fristrup

Sweden is performing a much more valuable service to the rest of the world as a neutral than she would be as a belligerent, Brigadier K. M. Fristrup of the Salvation Army declared in a talk at the meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel yesterday noon.

"Sweden has become the sanctuary for many victims of the war in Europe," Brigadier Fristrup said. "She is taking care of 90,000 Norwegian children and supporting them well. There are also thousands of refugees there from Denmark, Poland, Finland and Central Europe."

"Sweden's neutral shipping has helped in the repatriation of many Americans abroad," the Salvation Army leader continued. "In addition, it has made possible the deportation of enemy aliens from this country. The starving peoples of Greece have been receiving food from Sweden, and her shipping is facilitating the exchange services of the Red Cross in enemy countries."

Swedish People United

Brigadier Fristrup, a native of Denmark and a naturalized American citizen, went to Sweden in 1935 to become music director of the Salvation Army's Scandinavian division. He previously had been director of a boys' school in Honolulu.

When he arrived in Stockholm, he found Sweden divided in many factions, with Nazi and Communist activity rampant. Factional strife has ended with the war, and now Sweden is a united nation, with a coalition government headed by the highly respected Social Democratic leader, Albin Hansson.

Brigadier Fristrup described a visit to Finland and a conversation he had with President Kallio, who at that time stated he hoped that the Finnish nation would always hold the respect and friendship of the democratic nations. The speaker expressed the hope that present differences that have developed between United States and Finland as a result of the war would be erased, and he expressed the opinion that the Finnish nation deserves the place "she held under the sun before the war began."

Sweden Aided Finland

When Russia invaded Finland, the Swedish people wanted to aid the Finns but the government decided upon a neutral course to avoid complications, Brigadier Fristrup said. Swedish volunteers were allowed to join the Finnish army, however, and the shipment of materials and food to Finland was permitted.

When Germany invaded Norway, the sympathy of the Swedish people went out to the Norwegians, but the government again decided to maintain Sweden's neutrality, the speaker continued.

"If Sweden had followed her heart instead of her head, the Swedish people now would be fighting against the Russians in Finland and against the Germans in Norway," Fristrup said. "She would be a nation at war with herself."

The Salvation Army official said the Swedish royal family is popular with the poor and rich people and that the monarchial form of democratic government appears to function very well for Sweden. In closing, he told of wartime food conditions in Sweden, stating each person is allowed a half pound of meat a week, a quarter of a pound of coffee for five months, and one suit of clothes or overcoat for 18 months. Fish and fowl are not rationed, and can be bought quite freely in season, he added.
